Policy Center's Schools of Opportunity project was designed to highlight public high schools that are using research based practices for closing opportunity gaps in student learning. The project recognizes schools working to address the needs of all students whether or not those schools have high average test scores. This approach thus embraces a shift away from the nation's myopic focus on outcomes. This follows from research findings that schools alone cannot fix the problems created by the stark inequalities in our society. Instead, schools should be expected to do their part by responding to inequities with research based practices. With these shifts in mind, this book provides case studies of schools that demonstrate key criteria that other schools can emulate, such as an inclusive school climate, support for language minority students, performance based assessment, teacher professionalism, a commitment to detracking, and supports for students in need. Book Features: Provides accounts of school reform jointly told by researcher/practitioner teams connecting current research with successful efforts of educators to create outstanding learning environments. Brings together the voices of principals and school leaders who share stories of how their work has unfolded in their school district and state contexts. Identifies the school leadership and teacher practices that close opportunity gaps for student learning and what it takes to implement them. Social Studies, 9 & 10 University of the State of New York. Bureau of Secondary Curriculum Development, 1987. A syllabus that outlines a two year course of study of the major regions and cultures of the world. Units focus on particular regions of the world to enable students to acquire a baseline of knowledge of the major heritages of humankind and of the historical forces that have shaped them. The course is designed to develop in students a global perspective that includes perspective consciousness, cross cultural awareness, awareness of global dynamics, and awareness of choice. Resources in Education, 1994.
