context Occupational Therapy Models for Intervention with Children and Families Sandra Barker Dunbar, 2007
This textbook explores recent theoretical models that enable occupational therapists to practice and interact with families in a more holistic and occupation centered manner. It offers the latest information on viewing the broader contexts of environment and family in order to meet diverse occupational needs in a range of settings. The editor presents a variety of case scenarios that feature culturally diverse populations and varying diagnoses of children with occupational needs. With contributions from 11 leaders in occupational therapy, this comprehensive text is designed to increase awareness and understanding of theoretical models and their relationship to current occupational therapy practice with today's children and families. Traditional frames of reference in pediatric practice are explored, including sensory integration and neurodevelopmental treatment. Some current theoretical models discussed include the Model of Human Occupation, the Person-Environment-Occupation model, the Ecology of Human Performance model, and the Occupational Adaptation model. The new Occupational Therapy Practice Framework is incorporated throughout the text. Overall, the textbook employs a practical approach to this significant aspect of pediatric practice in occupational therapy. Doing Things Jitka M. Zgola, 1987-06
Doing Things shows how to provide a positive environment for persons with Alzheimer's disease by offering opportunities for social interaction and constructive enjoyable activities. Zgola outlines the ways in which a patient's functional impairment can be assessed, the strengths, weaknesses, and needs most commonly encountered among persons with Alzheimer's disease, and ways activities can be tailored to accommodate them. She offers step-by-step instructions for selecting and presenting appropriate activities and includes cooking and crafts projects, a sample exercise routine, and a sample daily schedule. The techniques she describes are designed to promote a sense of security and self-esteem by avoiding possible sources of confusion or confrontation. Based on the highly successful program developed at one day care facility for persons with dementia, Doing Things offers an invaluable guide for professionals and volunteers supervising activities at day care centers and extended care facilities, as well as for individuals who are caring for patients at home. Throughout, Zgola's emphasis is on treating persons who have Alzheimer's disease with empathy, courtesy, and dignity. Pedretti's Occupational Therapy - E-Book Heidi McHugh Pendleton, Winifred Schultz-Krohn, 2011-12-20
