Written Corrective Feedback in Second Language Acquisition and Writing John Bitchener, Dana R. Ferris, 2012-03-15. What should language and writing teachers do about giving students written corrective feedback? This book surveys theory, research and practice on the important and sometimes controversial issue of written corrective feedback, also known as error grammar correction, and its impact on second language acquisition and second language writing development. Offering state-of-the-art treatment of a topic that is highly relevant to both researchers and practitioners, it critically analyzes and synthesizes several parallel and complementary strands of research work on error feedback, both oral and written, in SLA and studies of the impact of error correction in writing composition courses and addresses practical applications. Drawing from both second language acquisition and writing composition literature, this volume is the first to intentionally connect these two separate but important lines of inquiry.

Jerlando F. L. Jackson, University of Wisconsin-Madison

The Black Student's Pathway to Graduate Study and Beyond

The Making of a Scholar makes key contributions to the extant literature. By underscoring Black graduate students' engagements with Academe, the scholars provide nuanced perspective through an array of contextual lenses, e.g., admissions, race, and gender socialization, transition that are endemic to higher education in general and the Historically Black College and University (HBCU) setting in particular. Critical Race Theory is the theoretical framework that provides scaffolding upon which the volume's scholars theorize best practices, strategies, and solutions that are authentic representations of their experiences. The pathway is an appropriate metaphor for this book; the scholars have provided illumination; it is incumbent upon us to initiate the journey.
