Pathologies of Desire Gerald Doherty, 2008 Discussions of the self in James Joyce's A Portrait of the Artist as a Young Man traditionally have a generic or a generalized quality the self is modernist or postmodernist essential or processive unified or fragmented etc Pathologies of Desire takes a different tack it shifts the ground of discussion locating the self in relation to particular dispositions or traits of the subject Stephen Dedalus More specifically it foregrounds three pathological states autoerotic paranoia and the shame guilt syndrome as primary modes of self aggregation the unique power of painful inner splits and divisions to precipitate self awareness and to make the self self reflexive As challenges to self understanding anxiety autoeroticism persecution paranoia and humiliation shame guilt are prime catalysts of those multi layered linguistic resources that fortify Stephen's self with the means of comprehending its own angst The fact that each particular self dissolves to make way for another underscores its purely contingent and transitional quality it functions as a defense against the singularity of the pain that it generates Stephen's ultimate prospect of creating new future selves is thus contingent on his power to liberate himself from the old ones oppressive conditioning The Shame Factor Robert Jewett, Wayne

Alon,2021-11-01 This book describes Socrates as he was depicted in medieval Arabic literature The body of anecdotes sayings and evaluations of Socrates existent in Arabic literature leads one to search for an explanation for the popularity of this ancient Greek pagan philosopher The author argues that Socrates played a role of legitimizing authority in the religious controversies between Christians and Muslims on the one hand and between the more rationalistic minded Muslims and the more traditionalistic ones on the other hand Thus three approaches are encountered those belonging to the non fundamentalistic stream in Islam refer to Socrates as a prophet historians such as ibn F tik or ibn Ab Usaib ah who relate to Socrates as an exemplary personality with tacit Islamic qualities The third approach is that of orthodox writers such as al Ghaz l who attack Socrates as a non believer
