Untranslating Machines Jacques Lezra, 2017-11-15 On what basis can we establish an alternative to the unifying of cultures brought about by economic globalization When ideas like objects and words can be translated and marketed everywhere what forms of critique are available Straddling the fields of political philosophy comparative literature animal studies global studies and political economy Untranslating Machines proposes to this end a weakened defective concept of untranslatability The analytic frame of Jacques Lezra's argument is rooted in Marx Derrida and Wittgenstein He moves historically from the moment when translation becomes firmly wed to mercantilism and to the consolidation of proto national state forms in European early modernity to the current moment in which the flow of information commodities and value creation protocols among international markets produces the regulative fantasy of a global coherent market of markets In a world in which translation and translatability have become a means and a model for the consolidation of a global cultural system this book proposes an understanding of untranslatability that serves to limit the articulation between a globalized capitalist value system and the figure and techniques of translation
