Article I Legislative Branch

The Legislative Branch, also known as Congress, is Article I of the United States Constitution. The main job of the Legislative Branch is to make the laws. The people who make the laws are called Legislators. Congress is bicameral. This means that Congress is made up of two houses: the Senate and the House of Representatives. Members of Congress work in the U.S. Capitol Building in Washington, D.C.

Every state has two Senators for a total of 100. They are elected by the people to represent their state. Article I of the U.S. Constitution outlines requirements to be a Senator.

The Vice President serves as President of the Senate and only votes in case of a tie. He is the only person to serve as vice president. When the President is not there, the President Pro Tempore is the leader of the Senate.

The House of Representatives is composed of 435 members. The number of representatives for each state is based on the population of the state. Every state has a minimum of one representative. The leader of the House is called the Speaker of the House.

To ensure a system of checks and balances, Congress has certain non-legislative (non-lawmaking) powers. Congress has the power to approve presidential appointments, coin money, levy taxes, declare war, approve treaties, and more.

Philadelphia Pennsylvania State House

The U.S. Constitution was discussed secretly, behind locked doors that were guarded. It took over three months to write.

Signatures to the same Pennsylvania Declaration of Independence was written in the document. The document is the oldest and shortest major government in the world.

Now the National Archives Building in Washington, D.C.

constitution was moved to the National Archives Building in 1933. All four pages are behind plexiglass. The cases contain degrees to preserve the document for the past 250 years, more than any other document. More than 100 copies have been introduced in
