SB1b Explain how enzymes can make cell process proceed more quickly.

Substrates are proteins which a specific enzyme can chemically recognize and to which it can bind. Substrates undergo chemical changes to form new substances called products. Each substrate fits into an area of the enzyme called the active site. It is like a lock-and-key mechanism. Once the enzyme-substrate complex is together, the enzyme holds the substrate in a position where the reaction can occur. Once the reaction is complete, the enzyme unlocks the product and the enzyme is free to facilitate another reaction. Enzymes are not permanently altered or used up in reactions but help the reactions occur more quickly by decreasing the activation energy.

SB1c Describe each of the four major macromolecules structure and function in living things.
