Basic Home Economics Mary Helen Mays, 1989 Recipes for Reading Anne Bower, 1997 The community cookbook is a familiar item in many kitchens Usually compiled by women and sold to raise funds for a charitable cause these collections of recipes may seem to be utilitarian objects that exhibit little if any narrative interest But this is hardly the case In Recipes for Reading scholars from a variety of disciplines examine community cookbooks as complex texts deserving serious study The contributors contend that such cookbooks have stories to tell about the lives and values of the women who wrote them stories that are autobiographical in most cases historical in some and fictive in others

Rebellious Cooks and Recipe Writing in Communist Bulgaria Albena Shkodrova, 2021-01-28 How did people exist and resist in their daily lives under Soviet control in the Cold War period Shkodrova's monograph shows how in communist Bulgaria many women passionately exchanged recipes with friends and strangers to build substantial and impressive private collections of recipes This activity was borderline contraband in going against the general disapproval of home cooking that formed part of the ideology of communism in which home cooking was considered household slavery and an agent of patriarchalism Private recipe collections were by far the preferred written source of culinary information more popular than the state approved commercial cookbooks Shkodrova shows how these recipe collections held many different meanings for the women who collected them from helping to navigate the communist economy to enabling new friendships to be developed while engaging safely in power relations and cultivating a sense of individual identity in a society where collective existence was prioritised and exalted Drawing on primary sources including scrapbook cookbooks and working from the establishment of cookery classes before communism and their obliteration thereafter Shkodrova presents a structured outline of the meanings of recipes exchange and home cooking for Bulgarian women under communism

Science and the Secrets of Nature William Eamon, 2020-06-30 By explaining how to sire multicolored horses produce nuts without shells and create an egg the size of a human head Giambattista Della Porta's Natural Magic 1559 conveys a fascination with tricks and illusions that makes it a work difficult for historians of science to take seriously Yet according to William Eamon it is in the how to books written by medieval alchemists magicians and artisans that modern science has its roots These compilations of recipes on everything from parlor tricks through medical remedies to wool dyeing fascinated medieval intellectuals because they promised access to esoteric secrets of nature In closely examining this rich but little known source of literature Eamon reveals that printing technology and popular culture had as great if not stronger an impact on early modern science as did the traditional academic disciplines
