

SALARY NEGOTIATIONS

(Confidential) Under Information on Employee Position 11.

The first step in negotiating the distribution of the total available salary is to determine the total available salary. This is done by adding the salaries of all employees in the company. The total available salary is then divided by the number of employees to determine the average salary. This average salary is then used to determine the salary for each employee. The salary for each employee is then compared to the salary for the same employee in the previous year. If the salary for the employee is higher than the salary for the same employee in the previous year, then the salary for the employee is increased. If the salary for the employee is lower than the salary for the same employee in the previous year, then the salary for the employee is decreased. This process is repeated for all employees in the company.

The second step in negotiating the distribution of the total available salary is to determine the salary for each employee. This is done by comparing the salary for each employee to the salary for the same employee in the previous year. If the salary for the employee is higher than the salary for the same employee in the previous year, then the salary for the employee is increased. If the salary for the employee is lower than the salary for the same employee in the previous year, then the salary for the employee is decreased. This process is repeated for all employees in the company.
