

- In Europe, nearly 40% of all plastics is used in the packaging sector, and packaging is the largest sector of plastics usage (Association of Plastics Manufacturers in Europe, APME)
- About 50% of Europe's food is packed in plastic packaging (British Plastics Federation, BPF)
- Plastics have properties of strength and toughness
- For example, polyethylene terephthalate (PET) film has a mechanical strength similar to that of iron, but under load the PET film will stretch considerably more than iron before breaking
- Specific plastics can meet the needs of a wide temperature range, from deep frozen food processing (-40°C) and storage (-20°C) to the high temperatures of retort sterilization (121°C), and reheating of packaged food products by microwave (100°C) and radiant heat (200°C)

Packaging Without Plastics Apme Report:

Plastics and the Environment I. Boustead, 1994 Plastics possess some special characteristics but most of the potential environmental problems and their solutions are common to other materials and industries This review considers their environmental impact in terms of industrial systems e g eco profile and life cycle systems and looks at energy consumption and recovery as well as recycling An additional indexed section containing several hundred abstracts from the Rapra Polymer Library database provides useful references for further reading

Plastics Product Recycling Sara Hulse, 2000 This report covers the consumption of plastics in Europe how much waste plastic is produced a summary of recent legislation and the various methods of dealing with plastic wastes The plastics recycling industry in Europe is then reviewed with an in depth look at the relevant legislation followed by a summary of the situation in most of the major European countries The major end use sectors for plastics and the problem of waste plastics in each are examined in the final section

Life Cycle Assessment and Environmental Impact of Polymeric Products T. J. O'Neill, 2003 This review describes the process of life cycle analysis in some detail It describes the different organisations involved in researching and applying these techniques and the database resources being used to generate comparative reports The overview explains the factors to be considered the terminology the organisations involved in developing these techniques and the legislation which is driving the whole process forward The ISO standards relating to environmental management are also discussed briefly in the document Design for the environment is covered in the report This review is accompanied by summaries of selected papers on life cycle analysis and environmental impact from the Rapra Polymer Library database

RAPRA Review Reports Rapra Technology Limited,

Handbook of Plastics Recycling Francesco Paolo La Mantia, 2002 This book discusses some of the state of the art techniques of recycling post consumer plastic materials and focuses on mechanical recycling chemical recycling and energy recovery The book is intended for all those who are interested in recycling of post consumer plastic waste Although this book discusses technical aspects of recycling the authors have endeavoured to make this book easily understandable to anyone interested in the subject enabling the reader to gain a thorough grounding in all the subjects discussed

Packaging for Sustainability Karli Verghese, Helen Lewis, Leanne Fitzpatrick, 2012-03-17 This concise and readable handbook for practitioners who are trying to implement sustainability strategies for packaging deploys industry case studies throughout to illustrate possible applications and scenarios in a sector under growing regulatory pressure

Sorting of Waste Plastics for Recycling , Plastics and Rubber International , 1991

Life Cycle Engineering of Plastics L. Lundquist, Y. Leterrier, P. Sunderland, J.A.E. Månson, 2001-01-23 This book adds much to the already evolving field of Design for Environment but it goes far beyond most works on this subject by surrounding the central notions of life cycle assessment with a scientific body of knowledge and with a more practical slant reflecting the reality of the organizations in which product development occurs Through a focus on plastic products the authors show the importance of making ties between basic technical knowledge and the process of life cycle engineering Their approach offers a practical deliberate way to make ecologically and economically sensible decisions about product reuse and recycling and other critical dimensions of product life behavior They demonstrate a positive approach to designing products that fits into a sustainable economy through down to earth cases While the book focuses on the life cycle engineering of plastics it is only a short step to other materials and products Beyond contributing to the technology of life cycle engineering this text adds to the growing body of knowledge that argues for an fundamentally new way of thinking about economic and social activity a new paradigm for sustainable social and industrial problem solving Industrial ecology is such a new system for thinking about and implementing sustainability that draws its core set of ideas from the ecological world Industrial ecology brings to the surface the idea of interdependence among members of a community natural or economic and notes the material cycles that are central to a stable ecosystem The life cycle engineering framework coupled with sound scientific knowledge of materials behavior as articulated in this book makes a giant step towards bringing the model of industrial ecology into everyday practice From the Preface by John R Ehrenfeld Director MIT Technology Business and Environment Program Center for Technology Policy and Industrial Development

Plastics Additives Geoffrey Pritchard, 2005 The additive families are considered with an outline of the technical issues and the trends driving the markets The main marketplaces for each additive type are discussed and the trends outlined It contains an overview of the significant trends in the four largest plastics market sectors packaging construction automotive and electrical and electronics The report focuses on the important issues within Europe with comment on the relevant trends in North America and Asia The report provides discussion of the trends in material consumption and specific additive groups It also includes brief company news and information for some of the leading additive suppliers
