

Function-Based Treatment for Problem Behavior

All behavior serves a function—children do things to get something or to get out of something. It's important to identify the function of a problem behavior in order to use the most effective strategies to reduce the behavior, increase inclusion and improve quality of life.

What is the function?

What does the behavior look like?

What evidence-based strategies work?

Sensory

Hand flapping, rocking, smelling objects, licking objects, rubbing the skin with an object, tapping ear, making vocal sounds, repetitive blinking, staring at lights, snapping fingers, grinding teeth, etc.

- Provide sensory breaks
- Block the behavior
- Reinforce the absence of the behavior
- Teach a replacement behavior
- Teach self-monitoring
- Use the behavior as a reinforcer

Escape

Hiding or arguing when told to clean their room;
Being disruptive right before a math test; or Putting head down on the desk when presented with academic work, etc.

- Continue to repeat the demand
- Teach appropriate requesting
- Reduce the demand following cooperation
- First/then rules (for example, do this work first, and then you'll get to play a video game)

Attention

Yelling or acting out when mom is on the phone;
Blurting out an answer in class; or Throwing an item across the room to get the therapist's attention, etc.

- Planned ignoring
- Teach appropriate ways to get attention
- Make attention a reinforcer for behavior you want to see
- Use attention to reinforce others to do the right thing

Tangible

Throwing a tantrum in the checkout lane because they want candy;
Screaming when told to put the iPad away; or Grabbing a toy away from another student, etc.

- Use the tangible (the desired object) as a reinforcer for appropriate behavior
- Reinforce others using the preferred tangible
- Heavy emphasis on choice and Control of Network Traffic by Computational Intelligence Federico Montesino Pouzols, Diego R. Lopez, Joaquim Barros, 2011-02-05 As other complex systems in social and natural sciences as well as in engineering the Internet is hard to understand from a technical point of view Packet switched networks defy analytical modeling The Internet is an outstanding and challenging case because of its fast development unparalleled heterogeneity and the inherent lack of measurement and monitoring mechanisms in its core conception This monograph deals with applications of computational intelligence methods with an emphasis on fuzzy techniques to a number of current issues in measurement analysis and control of traffic in the Internet First the core building blocks of Internet Science and other related networking aspects are introduced Then data mining and control problems are addressed In the first class two issues are considered predictive modeling of traffic load as well as summarization of traffic flow measurements The second class control includes active queue management schemes for Internet routers as well as window based end to end rate and congestion control The practical hardware implementation of some of the fuzzy inference systems proposed here is also addressed While some theoretical developments are described we favor extensive evaluation of models using real world data by simulation and experiments Police Integrity in South Africa Sanja Kutnjak Ivkovich, Adri Sauerman, 2020-04-29 Policing in South Africa has gained notoriety through its extensive history of oppressive law enforcement In 1994 as the country's apartheid system was replaced with a democratic order the new government faced the significant challenge of transforming the South African police force into a democratic police agency the South African Police Service SAPS that would provide unbiased policing to all the country's people More than two decades since the initiation of the reforms it appears that the SAPS has rapidly developed a reputation as a police agency beset by challenges to its integrity This book offers a unique perspective by providing in depth analyses of police integrity in South Africa It is a case study that systematically and empirically explores the contours of police integrity in a young democracy Using the organizational theory of police integrity the book analyzes the complex set of historical legal political social and economic circumstances shaping police integrity A discussion of the theoretical framework is accompanied by the results of a nationwide survey of nearly 900 SAPS officers probing their familiarity with official rules their expectations of discipline within the SAPS and their willingness to report misconduct The book also examines the influence of the respondents race gender and supervisory status on police integrity Written in a clear and direct style this book will appeal to students and scholars of criminology policing sociology political science as well as to police administrators interested in expanding their knowledge about police integrity and enhancing it in their organizations

Forest Management in Nepal

Ian Hill,1999-01-01 Forests play a vital role in maintaining Nepal s impressive biodiversity which has global significance With only 0.1 percent of the world s total area Nepal contains 2 percent of the planet s flowering plants 8 percent of its birds and 4 percent of its mammals As Nepal develops its forest resources it needs to minimize the biotic pressures affecting the structure and dynamics of forest plant communities and wildlife populations and thereby reverse the current destructive pressures on the country s biodiversity The study aims to provide a better understanding of the ways in which forest resources are used in Nepal Its focus is to examine systematically the costs and benefits of present and possible future sustainable and biodiversity friendly management practices from household national and global perspectives The authors define the analytical framework and the costs of financial and economic alternatives They also present the economic social institutional and legal issues and recommend strategies for change The report should be of use to national and donor agencies concerned with the management of natural resources and conservation of biodiversity in Nepal providing a framework for possible future donor support to the sector It highlights issues that are of importance in the formulation and implementation of natural resource management programs by government and non government agencies
