The United Nations Special Procedures System Aoife Nolan, Rosa Freedman, Thérèse Murphy, 2017-01-09 The United Nations Special Procedures system is a key element of the evolving international framework for human rights protection and promotion However despite the system's expansion the range of roles and functions performed by mandate holders and the mounting evidence of its strengths and limitations there has been very little academic interrogation or analysis of Special Procedures This lacuna is ever more problematic given the growing profile and effectiveness of the Special Procedures work as well as the increasing attention and challenges that they face both externally from States and internally from within the UN system Given the current state of play of Special Procedures it is essential that scholarly attention be focussed upon the system How does it contribute to international human rights protection How when and why does it fail to do so What steps can and should be taken to address shortcomings both within the system and in terms of the legal and political context within which it operates Featuring expert contributions from key players within and expert commentators on the Special Procedures system this volume addresses these questions in an in depth and rigorous scholarly manner

The 1949 Geneva Conventions Andrew Clapham, Paola Gaeta, Marco Sassòli, Iris van der Heijden, 2015 The four Geneva Conventions created in 1949 remain the fundamental basis of contemporary international humanitarian law They protect the wounded on the battlefield those wounded or shipwrecked at sea the treatment of prisoners of war and civilians in a war zone However since they were adopted warfare has changed considerably In this groundbreaking commentary over sixty experts from multiple disciplines within international law investigate how the Geneva Conventions are applied today It places the Conventions in the light of the developing obligations imposed by international law on states and individuals most notably through international human rights law and international criminal law The context in which the Conventions are applied and interpreted has changed considerably since they were first written The borderline between international and non international armed conflicts is not as clear cut as was once thought and is complicated further by the use of armed force mandated by the United Nations and the complex nature of certain internal armed conflicts The influence of other developing branches of international law such as human rights law and refugee law has been considerable The development of international criminal law has breathed new life into multiple provisions of the Geneva Conventions This commentary adopts a thematic approach to provide detailed analysis of each key article taking into account both judicial decisions and state practice Cross cutting chapters on issues such as transnational conflicts and the geographical scope of the Conventions also give readers a full understanding of the impact of the Geneva Conventions in their contemporary context This commentary on four of the most important treaties in international law is unmissable for anyone working in or studying situations of armed conflicts
