Threshold Concepts in Practice Ray Land, Jan H. F. Meyer, Michael T. Flanagan, 2016-07-09

Threshold Concepts in Practice brings together fifty researchers from sixteen countries and a wide variety of disciplines to analyse their teaching practice and the learning experiences of their students through the lens of the Threshold Concepts Framework In any discipline there are certain concepts the jewels in the curriculum whose acquisition is akin to passing through a portal Learners enter new conceptual and often affective territory Previously inaccessible ways of thinking or practising come into view without which they cannot progress and which offer a transformed internal view of subject landscape or even world view These conceptual gateways are integrative exposing the previously hidden interrelatedness of ideas and are irreversible However they frequently present troublesome knowledge and are often points at which students become stuck Difficulty in understanding may leave the learner in a liminal state of transition a betwixt and between space of knowing and not knowing where understanding can approximate to a form of mimicry Learners navigating such spaces report a sense of uncertainty ambiguity paradox anxiety even chaos The liminal space may equally be one of awe and wonderment Thresholds research identifies these spaces as key transformational points crucial to the learner's development but where they can oscillate and remain for considerable periods These spaces require not only conceptual but ontological and discursive shifts This volume the fourth in a tetralogy on Threshold Concepts discusses student experiences and the curriculum interventions of their teachers in a range of disciplines and professional practices including medicine law engineering architecture and military education

tolerated as a rite of passage among children and adolescents There is an implication that individuals who are bullied must have asked for this type of treatment or deserved it Sometimes even the child who is bullied begins to internalize this idea For many years there has been a general acceptance and collective shrug when it comes to a child or adolescent with greater social capital or power pushing around a child perceived as subordinate But bullying is not developmentally appropriate it should not be considered a normal part of the typical social grouping that occurs throughout a child s life Although bullying behavior endures through generations the milieu is changing Historically bullying has occurred at school the physical setting in which most of childhood is centered and the primary source for peer group formation In recent years however the physical setting is not the only place bullying is occurring Technology allows for an entirely new type of digital electronic aggression cyberbullying which takes place through chat rooms instant messaging social media and other forms of digital electronic communication Composition of peer groups shifting demographics changing societal norms and modern technology are contextual factors that must be considered to understand and effectively react to bullying in the United States Youth are embedded in multiple contexts and each of these contexts interacts with individual characteristics of youth in ways that either exacerbate or attenuate the association between these individual characteristics and bullying perpetration or victimization Recognizing that bullying behavior is a major public health problem that demands the concerted and coordinated time and attention of parents educators and school administrators health care providers policy makers families and others concerned with the care of children this report evaluates the state of the science on biological and psychosocial consequences of peer victimization and the risk and protective factors that either increase or decrease peer victimization behavior and consequences
