The major source of the loss of tropical rain forest is the need for agricultural land. The major source of the loss of temperate forest is the need for timber. The loss of forest is a major cause of the loss of biodiversity. The loss of forest is a major cause of the loss of the world's natural resources. 1. The first step in the process of creating a new product is to identify a market need. This involves conducting market research to understand the preferences and behaviors of potential customers. Once a need is identified, the next step is to develop a concept that addresses this need. This concept should be unique and offer a clear value proposition to the target market.

2. After developing a concept, the next step is to create a prototype. This is a tangible representation of the product idea that allows the team to test and refine the design. Prototyping can be done using various methods, such as 3D printing, CAD, or even hand-drawn models, depending on the complexity of the product.

3. Once a prototype is created, the next step is to conduct a feasibility study. This study evaluates the technical, financial, and operational aspects of the product. It helps to determine if the product is viable and if the resources are available to bring it to market. Key factors to consider include the cost of production, the time to market, and the potential for profitability.

4. Following the feasibility study, the next step is to develop a business plan. This plan outlines the overall strategy for the product, including the marketing and sales approach, the distribution channels, and the financial projections. A well-defined business plan is essential for securing funding and guiding the product's development.

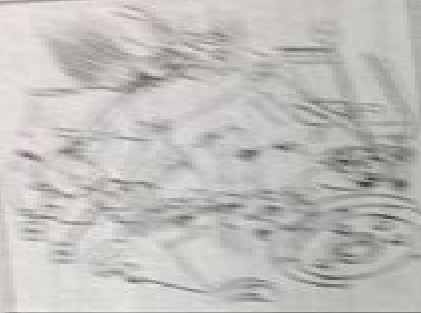

5. The final step in the process is to launch the product. This involves manufacturing the product at scale, implementing the marketing and sales strategy, and monitoring the product's performance in the market. Continuous feedback from customers and stakeholders is crucial for making improvements and ensuring the product's long-term success.

Under 400 ppm, the RDM will start injecting fuel (acetone) as soon as the CV module receives a run signal, preheats the spark and produces a reference signal for the RDM to calculate the fuel injection. The CV module controls the spark plug timing. After 400 ppm, the RDM stops during this period. After 450 ppm, the RDM starts Fuel-rich Spark timing (FRT) and changes its mode of fuel injection to sequential, providing a lean start is required.
