1. A ping fails when performed from router R1 to directly connected router R2. The network administrator then pings the host on the other side neighbor connected. Why would the network administrator know they connected if the ping failed between the two routers?

- a. The network administrator wants to verify that the ping packet did not arrive.
- b. The network administrator wants to verify Layer 2 connectivity.
- c. The network administrator wants to verify that IP addresses configured are correct R2.
- d. The network administrator wants to test general IP connectivity from the connected hosts to verify if they connected correctly.

Explanation:

The other side neighbor connected can be used to prove that Layer 2 and Layer 3 connectivity exists between the two routers. For example, if two routers have duplicate IP addresses, a ping between the devices will fail, but if connected to other side neighbors will be successful. The other side neighbors ping will also be successful, verifying that IP addresses are correctly configured on the two routers.

- c. EIGRP is disabled globally on the router interface.
- d. Disabled is true, so that other side router R1 EIGRP process is disabled, not implemented in routers.
