Human Computation

Edith Law, Luis von Ahn, 2022-06-01 Human computation is a new and evolving research area that centers around harnessing human intelligence to solve computational problems that are beyond the scope of existing Artificial Intelligence AI algorithms. With the growth of the Web, human computation systems can now leverage the abilities of an unprecedented number of people via the Web to perform complex computation. There are various genres of human computation applications that exist today. Games with a purpose, e.g., the ESP Game, specifically target online gamers who generate useful data, e.g., image tags, while playing an enjoyable game. Crowdsourcing marketplaces, e.g., Amazon Mechanical Turk, are human computation systems that coordinate workers to perform tasks in exchange for monetary rewards. In identity verification tasks, users perform computation in order to gain access to some online content; an example is reCAPTCHA, which leverages millions of users who solve CAPTCHAs every day to correct words in books that optical character recognition (OCR) programs fail to recognize with certainty. This book is aimed at achieving four goals: 1. defining human computation as a research area; 2. providing a comprehensive review of existing work; 3. drawing connections to a wide variety of disciplines, including AI, Machine Learning, HCI, Mechanism Market Design, and Psychology, and capturing their unique perspectives on the core research questions in human computation; and 4. suggesting promising research directions for the future.

Module for assessing and strengthening the quality of viral load testing data within HIV programmes and patient monitoring systems: implementation tool, Second edition World Health Organization, 2024-03-26 This technical update of the 2020 viral load data quality module provides further guidance on the recommended data quality assurance activities, updated web annexes to support country implementation, and generic budgets for viral load testing data quality monitoring activities. These are part of ongoing efforts to standardize approaches to ensure that accurate and timely HIV viral load testing data and results are available for both clinical use and to strengthen programme monitoring. This aligns with recommendations outlined in the 2022 WHO Consolidated guidelines on person-centred HIV strategic information on data quality assessment and improvement. The updated guidance on the priority indicators and the key elements of data quality include:

- Key indicators to be included in data quality monitoring activities
- Main activities to be included in the viral load testing data quality assessment process
- The calculation of viral load test turnaround times
- Considerations for data quality assessments for sites with electronic data systems
- Sampling for national
