| 2. Abstract            | 2.1 Summary of the Study | This study investigates the impact of climate change on coastal ecosystems, focusing on the effects of rising sea levels and increased frequency of extreme weather events on marine biodiversity and coastal infrastructure. |
|                        | 2.2 Objectives           | The primary objective is to assess the vulnerability of coastal ecosystems to climate change. Secondary objectives include identifying key areas for conservation and developing strategies to mitigate potential damage.     |
|                        | 2.3 Methodology          | The study employs a combination of field observations, data analysis, and modeling to evaluate the impact of climate change on coastal ecosystems.                                                                            |
|                        | 2.4 Results              | The results indicate a significant decline in biodiversity and a substantial increase in the frequency of extreme weather events, leading to severe damage to coastal infrastructure.                                         |
