Harty, 2022-06-01 Testing applications for mobile phones is difficult time consuming and hard to do effectively Many people have limited their testing efforts to hands on testing of an application on a few physical handsets and they have to repeat the process every time a new version of the software is ready to test They may miss many of the permutations of real world use and as a consequence their users are left with the unpleasant mess of a failing application on their phone Test automation can help to increase the range and scope of testing while reducing the overhead of manual testing of each version of the software However automation is not a panacea particularly for mobile applications so we need to pick our test automation challenges wisely This book is intended to help software and test engineers pick appropriately to achieve more and as a

This year INTERACT was held in Uppsala Sweden organized by the Swedish Interdisciplinary Interest Group for Human Computer Interaction STIMDI in cooperation with the Department of Information Technology at Uppsala University. Like its predecessors INTERACT 2009 highlighted both to the academic and to the industrial world the importance of the human computer interaction HCI area and its most recent breakthroughs on current applications. Both experienced HCI researchers and professionals as well as newcomers to the HCI field interested in designing or evaluating interactive software developing new interaction technologies or investigating overarching theories of HCI found in INTERACT 2009 a great forum for communication with people of similar interests to encourage collaboration and to learn. INTERACT 2009 had Research and Practice as its special theme. The reason we selected this theme is that the research within the field has drifted away from the practical applicability of its results and that the HCI practice has come to disregard the knowledge and development within the academic community. Computers Helping People with Special Needs,
