MEIOSIS

STRUCTURE AND ARRANGEMENT OF CHROMOSOMES IN A NORMAL HUMAN KARYOTYPE.

- Each chromosome comprises two chromatids□
- held together by a centromere□
- There are 23 pairs□/46 chromosomes in
- human somatic cells□/body cells
- which are arranged into homologous pairs□
- that are similar in length□
- carry genes for the same characteristics□
- have alleles of a particular gene at the same loci□and
- have the same centromere position□
- Each somatic cell has 22 pairs/44 autosomes□and
- a pair/2 gonosomes□/sex chromosomes/X and Y chromosomes
- Autosomes are arranged in pairs from largest to smallest□ in a karyotype
- Males have XY chromosomes□
- Females have XX chromosomes□
- The X chromosome is larger than the Y chromosome□

BEHAVIOUR OF THE CHROMOSOMES DURING THE DIFFERENT PHASES OF MEIOSIS I.

- During prophase□ I
- chromosomes pair□up/homologous pairs /bivalents form
- Crossing over□exchange of genetic material occurs
- between chromatids□/adjacent chromosome pairs
- During metaphase□ I of meiosis
- homologous chromosomes□/chromosome pairs are arranged
- at the equator□of the cell
- in a random□ way
- with the chromosome attached to the spindle fibre□

Cognitive Psychology Norbert Schwarz Eryn Newman William Leach Editorial Policy Towards an embodied science of intersubjectivity: Widening the scope of social understanding research Ezequiel Di Paolo, Hanne De Jaegher, 2015-06-16 An important amount of research effort in psychology and neuroscience over the past decades has focused on the problem of social cognition. This problem is understood as how we figure out other minds relying only on indirect manifestations of other people's intentional states which are assumed to be hidden private and internal. Research on this question has mostly investigated how individual cognitive mechanisms achieve this task. A shift in the internalist assumptions regarding intentional states has expanded the research focus with hypotheses that explore the role of interactive phenomena and interpersonal histories and their implications for understanding individual cognitive processes. This interactive expansion of the conceptual and methodological toolkit for investigating social cognition we now propose can be followed by an expansion into wider and deeply related research questions beyond but including that of social cognition narrowly construed. Our social lives are populated by different kinds of cognitive and affective phenomena that are related to but not exhausted by the question of how we figure out other minds. These phenomena include acting and perceiving together verbal and non verbal engagement experiences of disconnection management of relations in a group joint meaning making intimacy trust conflict negotiation asymmetric relations material mediation of social interaction collective action contextual engagement with socio cultural norms structures and roles etc. These phenomena are often characterized by a strong participation by the cognitive agent in contrast with the spectatorial stance typical of social cognition research. We use the broader notion of embodied intersubjectivity to refer to this wider set of phenomena. This Research Topic aims to investigate relations between these different issues to help lay strong foundations for a science of intersubjectivity the social mind writ large. To contribute to this goal we encouraged contributions in psychology neuroscience psychopathology philosophy and cognitive science that address this wider scope of intersubjectivity by extending the range of explanatory factors from purely individual to interactive from observational to participatory.

the title Arbitration Practitioner ArbP Critical Childhood Studies and the Practice of Interdisciplinarity Joanne Faulkner, Magdalena Zolkos, 2015-12-14 This book analyzes different figurations of childhood in contemporary culture and politics with a particular focus on interdisciplinary methodologies of critical childhood studies It argues that while the figure of the child has been traditionally located at the peripheries of academic disciplines perhaps most notably in history sociology and literature the proposed critical discussions of the ideological symbolic and affective roles that children play in contemporary societies suggest that they are often the locus of larger societal crises collective psychic tensions and unspoken prohibitions and taboos As such this book brings into focus the prejudices against childhood embedded in our standard approaches to organizing knowledge and asks is there a natural disciplinary home for the study of childhood Or is this field fundamentally interdisciplinary peripheral or problematic to notions of disciplinary identity In this respect does childhood force innovation in thinking about disciplinarity For instance how does the analysis of childhood affect how we think about methodology What role do understandings of childhood play in delimiting how we conceive of our society our future and ourselves How does thinking about childhood affect how we think about culture history and politics This book brings together researchers working broadly in critical child studies but from various disciplines in the humanities and social sciences including philosophy literary studies sociology cultural studies and history in order to stage a conversation between these diverse perspectives on the disciplinary or interdisciplinary character of the child as an object of research Such conversation builds on the assumption that childhood far from being marginal is a topic that is hidden in plain sight That is to say while the child is always a presence in culture history literature and philosophy and is often even a highly charged figure within those fields its operation and effects are rarely theoretically scrutinized but rather are more likely drawn upon surreptitiously for another purpose
