Two Important Events in European History the Protestant Reformation and Counter-Reformation

The Protestant Reformation and the Counter-Reformation have been two very significant events in European history. They are a vitally important part of the Renaissance. They marked the point at which the power of the Church was decreasing and the power of monarchs increasing. The Protestant Reformation began from Martin Luther. Martin Luther had once been a monk of the Church, but after learning about the way in which indulgences were practiced in the Church (especially practiced by Tetzel), he had written 95 indulgence applications and posted them in a nearby church.

He supposed that the Church would accept these petitions. Unfortunately for the Church, the petitions were not accepted. By not adopting Luther's teachings, the church had inadvertently encouraged its own decline. Since they did not kill Luther immediately, he was able to spread his "heresy," and, by the time the Church realized how large a threat he was, it was too late. Luther had, in the 1520's started the religion of Lutherism. Lutherinism conflicted directly with the Church. It said that only two the Sacraments were needed: Baptism and Communion. This would have reduced the power of the Protestant clergy and also saved the farmers money.

It also would also encourage the peasants to become converts. It also would encourage lords and princes to convert. They converted to take over the Church's hold on their lands and also to gain gigantic amounts of power over the new religion. Instead of the church controlling the officials, the officials were controlling the (Lutheran) church. Lutheranism also emphasized intentions. He said that in fact, for God to forgive a person, they should feel real regret, not just pay a fine. He also said that in order for a person to be accounted good, they must have a good purpose, not just fear of hell. I believe that these facts were not important to the converts compared to the facts that Luther defined Lutheranism much more clearly than the Church defined Christendom.

Paper On Reformation:

Some Aspects of the Reformation: an Essay Suggested by Dr. Littledale's Lecture on "Innovations." John Gibson Cazenove, 1869 Lectures and Papers on the History of the Reformation in England and on the Continent Aubrey Lackington Moore, 1890 A.I.D. Spring Review of Land Reform: Country papers, 1970 Law Reform in Developing and Transitional States Timothy Lindsey, 2007

Law reform in developing countries has become an increasingly topical subject in recent years. A critical issue is why so many law reform projects in developing economies are regarded by their sponsors and recipients as unsuccessful. This informative book examines examples of law reform projects in post socialist and post authoritarian states in Asia, identifies common problems, proposes analytical frameworks for understanding the problems identified. Though parallels between Asian models and those in developing states elsewhere in the world are strong, the book has been developed to avoid suggestion that the issues covered are somehow peculiarly Asian. Indeed, it is shown that cultural relativist approaches to Asia are unsustainable. This is an invaluable reference for those involved in the areas of development economics, Asian studies and comparative politics. A.I.D. Spring Review of Land Reform: Country papers United States. Agency for International Development, 1970 A.I.D. Spring Review of Land Reform: Analytical papers, 1970 An Essay on the Science of Law and on Its Reform William Forbes Johnson, 1870 University Reform: Two Papers John Richard Magrath, 1876 A.I.D. Spring Review of Land Reform: Background papers United States. Agency for International Development, 1970 Rethinking Power Sector Reform in the Developing World Vivien Foster, Anshul Rana, 2019-12-05

During the 1990s a new paradigm for power sector reform was put forward, emphasizing the restructuring of utilities, the creation of regulators, the participation of the private sector and the establishment of competitive power markets. Twenty five years later, only a handful of developing countries have fully implemented these Washington Consensus policies. Across the developing world, reforms were adopted rather selectively, resulting in a hybrid model in which elements of market orientation coexist with continued state dominance of the sector. This book aims to revisit and refresh thinking on power sector reform approaches for developing countries. The approach relies heavily on evidence from the past, drawing both on broad global trends and deep case material from 15 developing countries. It is also forward looking, considering the implications of new social and environmental policy goals as well as the emerging technological disruptions. A nuanced picture emerges. Although regulation has been widely adopted, practice often falls well short of theory, and cost recovery remains an elusive goal. The private sector has financed a substantial expansion of generation capacity, yet its contribution to power distribution has been much more limited, with efficiency levels that can sometimes be matched by well governed public utilities. Restructuring and liberalization have been beneficial in a handful of larger middle income nations but have proved too complex for most countries to implement. Based on these findings, the report points to three major policy implications. First, reform efforts need to be shaped by the political and economic context of the country. The 1990s reform model was most successful in countries that had reached certain minimum conditions of power sector development and offered a supportive political environment. Second countries found alternative institutional pathways to achieving good power sector outcomes making a case for greater pluralism. Among the top performers some pursued the full set of market oriented reforms while others retained a more important role for the state. Third reform efforts should be driven and tailored to desired policy outcomes and less preoccupied with following a predetermined process particularly since the twenty first century agenda has added decarbonization and universal access to power sector outcomes. The Washington Consensus reforms while supportive of the twenty first century agenda will not be able to deliver on them alone and will require complementary policy measures.

OECD Reviews of Regulatory Reform: Mexico 2004 Progress in Implementing Regulatory Reform OECD, 2004-11-04 This comprehensive review of Mexican regulatory policy outlines progress made by Mexico since the 1999 review conducted by the OECD and makes recommendations for further reforms aimed at promoting investment and boosting productivity and Occasional Paper. Progressive Reformation, a Church Principle Plymouth Church Reform Association (Plymouth), J. N. Bennett, 1851 Pension Reform and the Development of Pension Systems Emily S. Andrews, 2006 Formal pension systems are an important means of reducing poverty among the aged. In recent years however pension reform has become a pressing matter as demographic aging, poor administration, early retirement and unaffordable benefits have strained pension balances and overall public finances. Pension systems have become a source of macroeconomic instability, a constraint to economic growth and an ineffective and/or inequitable provider of retirement income. Understanding Estimates of the Impact of Health Reform on the Federal Budget, 1994 The Implications for Access to Justice of the Government's Proposals to Reform Judicial Review - HL 174, HC 868

Great Britain: Parliament: Joint Committee on Human Rights, 2014-04-30 According to the report The Implications For Access To Justice Of The Government's Proposals To Reform Judicial Review HC 868 the number of judicial reviews has remained remarkably steady when the increase in the number of immigration judicial reviews now handled by the Upper Tribunal is disregarded. The report covers procedural defects and substantive outcomes, legal aid for judicial review cases, interveners and costs, capping of costs, protective costs orders, alternatives to the Government's judicial review reforms, judicial review and the public sector equality duty. How Politics and Institutions Affect Pension Reform in Three Postcommunist Countries Mitchell Alexander Orenstein, 2000 During reform's three phases: commitment, building coalition, building and implementation, there are tradeoffs among inclusiveness of process, radicalism of reform and participation in and compliance with the new system. Including more and more various veto and proposal actors early in the deliberative process may increase buy in and compliance when pension reform is implemented but at the expense of faster and greater change. EU proposals for reform of the Common Fisheries Policy Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Environment, Food and Rural Affairs Committee, 2012-02-24 In this report the Environment Food and Rural Affairs Committee concludes that radical reform is needed to ensure that the Common Fisheries Policy CFP delivers for the fish the fishermen and the coastal communities that depend on them The widespread desire to deliver a more local approach to fisheries management is hampered by the EU s exclusive competence over the conservation of marine resources under the CFP as only the EU can make rules regarding fisheries conservation The Commission has baulked at repatriation of fishing policy through a full scale Treaty change but the Committee highlights an alternative this can be done by amending the CFP regulation itself This approach would give Member States genuine freedom and responsibility and would set clear boundaries to the Commission role The Commission also wants to implement a discard ban on many commercial species starting in 2014 but the MPs question whether the proposal will prove effective Instead the Committee argues for a more gradual approach built on a sound science base and the local experience of fishermen to find workable solutions to the discard problem that has blighted European fisheries The Committee also urges Defra not to abandon its commitment to domestic fisheries reform that delivers a fairer deal to small scale fishermen The Committee proposes a novel mechanism to reallocate unused fishing rights from slipper skippers to active fishermen a topic that was covered in an earlier report on the CFP and domestic fisheries management sixth report of session 2010 12 HC 858 ISBN 9780215559944

Pro-poor Land Reform Saturnino M. Borras,2007-09-06 Using empirical case materials from the Philippines and referring to rich experiences from different countries historically this book offers conceptual and practical conclusions that have far reaching implications for land reform throughout the world Examining land reform theory and practice this book argues that conventional practices have excluded a significant portion of land based production and distribution relationships while they have inadvertently included land transfers that do not constitute real redistributive reform By direct implication this book is a critique of both mainstream market led agrarian reform and conventional state led land reform It offers an alternative perspective on how to move forward in theory and practice and opens new paths in land policy research

Structural Reform and Growth Kevin Greenidge,Mr.Meredith A. McIntyre,Hanlei Yun,2016-04-12 Since the 1980 s with the introduction of IMF WB adjustment programs structural reforms have been a core part of the reform agenda in the Caribbean The paper reviewed the package of structural reforms in trade liberalization financial liberalization and tax policy and gauges their impact on growth The paper used a set of reform indices to gauge both short run and long run effects of structural reforms on growth controlling for other possible growth determinants using panel dynamic OLS estimation In addition recognizing the importance of institutions to growth the empirical analysis also analyzed the impact of institutional quality on growth for a sample of small states including the Caribbean We concluded that the benefits of structural reforms are only seen over the long term and in reinvigorating growth the reform effort needs to be revived and include greater attention to strengthening institutional quality study uses administrative data on firm to firm transactions and quasi experimental variation in the rollout of electronic invoicing reforms in Peru to study the diffusion of e invoicing through firm networks and its effect on tax compliance We find that voluntary e invoicing adoption is higher amongst firms with partners who are mandated to adopt e invoicing implying positive technology adoption spillovers Spillovers are stronger from downstream partners and from export oriented firms Firms are less likely to continue transacting with a partner who has been mandated into e invoicing with the effect only partially reversed if both firms adopt e invoicing suggesting that network segmentation may occur Smaller firms who transact with partners mandated into e invoicing report 11 percent more sales and pay 17 more VAT in the year that their partner is mandated to adopt e invoicing suggesting positive spillovers in tax compliance behavior for this subset of firms
