Narrating Friendship and the British Novel, 1760-1830 Katrin Berndt, 2016-10-14 Friendship has always been a universal category of human relationships and an influential motif in literature but it is rarely discussed as a theme in its own right In her study of how friendship gives direction and shape to new ideas and novel strategies of plot character formation and style in the British novel from the 1760s to the 1830s Katrin Berndt argues that friendship functions as a literary expression of philosophical values in a genre that explores the psychology and the interactions of the individual in modern society In the literary historical period in which the novel became established as a modern genre friend characters were omnipresent reflecting enlightenment philosophy's definition of friendship as a bond that civilized public and private interactions and was considered essential for the attainment of happiness Berndt's analyses of genre defining novels by Frances Brooke Mary Shelley Sarah Scott Helen Maria Williams Charlotte Lennox Walter Scott Jane Austen and Maria Edgeworth show that the significance of friendship and the increasing variety of novelistic forms and topics represent an overlooked dynamic in the novel's literary history Contributing to our understanding of the complex interplay of philosophical socio cultural and literary discourses that shaped British fiction in the later Hanoverian decades Berndt's book demonstrates that novels have conceived the modern individual not in opposition to but in interaction with society continuing Enlightenment debates about how to share the lives and the experiences of others

It brings together a range of critical approaches: the Gothic monster theory, critical posthumanism, post-structuralism, postcolonialism, feminist theory, fat studies, cyborg theory, including very recent forays into posthumanist, new materialist intersections. It contributes new readings to the critical canon on a wide range of critically acclaimed texts from Mary Shelley's Frankenstein via Toni Morrison's and Angela Carter's work to Margaret Atwood's MaddAddam trilogy. In a series of letters to his sister Walton describes how passion for discovery takes him to the Arctic and he relates to her his thoughts and experiences as he searches for new frontiers. But he finds something entirely different. As the sea ice closes in on his ship, he and his crew sight a strange, gigantic being driving a dogsled across the frozen wasteland, finally disappearing into the distance. The next day they find an ill and dying man floating on a fragment of ice and persuade him to come on board for his safety. As his ship lies trapped by the surrounding ice, Walton spends many hours talking with the ill man, a Victor Frankenstein of Geneva. As they talk, Frankenstein slowly tells his story to Walton. Frankenstein, too, was driven by a desire to make a name for himself, to forge ahead into realms in which no other man had trod. He searched the fields of biology, chemistry, and electricity for the secret to life and creation. Frankenstein succeeded in understanding what no other man had comprehended, and he soon put his knowledge to gruesome practical application, making a man. He succeeded also in this, but with his success came horror and
