My belief about myself as a learner when I entered the class was a positive one. I attended a college prep school for high school and went to Oregon State University last year. I had plenty of practice with different learning techniques and found what works well for me. I believe I'm more of a visual learner than an auditory learner. It is easier to see a powerpoint and retain the knowledge then listen to a lecture and have the same retention. Entering the class I thought I liked working in groups more than working individually on projects, but that has since changed. I think it is more beneficial to me to work alone because I can get more done. When I entered the class I believed that reading the material closer to the due date was a better idea because I may not remember what I had read if I didn't.

What I have discovered about myself, as a learner over the term is vast. I learned that I can read the material way in advance and just briefly skim over the text and remember just about everything, were as I thought reading closer was more beneficial. I also learned that working in groups really isn't my specialty. I prefer working by myself because I'm able to get a lot more done and not have to worry about other people forgetting their part of the project. I don't like having to worry about other people not following through. I also learned that looking at the daily record in advanced helped me

The Cambridge Introduction to Creative Writing David Morley, 2007-05-10 Publisher description

Reconstructing Response to Student Writing Dan Melzer, 2023-08-07 In Reconstructing Response to Student Writing Dan Melzer makes the argument that writing instructors should shift the construct so that peer response and student self assessment are more central than teacher response Presenting the results of a national study of teacher and peer response and student self assessment at institutions of higher education across the United States Melzer analyzes teacher and peer response to over 1 000 pieces of student writing as well as 128 student portfolio reflection essays He draws on his analysis and on a comprehensive review of the literature on response to introduce a constructivist heuristic for response aimed at both composition instructors and instructors across disciplines Melzer argues that teachers and researchers should focus less on teacher response to individual pieces of student writing and more on engaging in dialogue with student self assessment and peer response focusing on growth and transfer rather than products and grades Reconstructing Response to

Student Writing especially when taken together with Melzer's previous book Assignments across the Curriculum provides a comprehensive and large scale view of college writing and responding across the curriculum in the United States

English and Reflective Writing Skills in Medicine Clive Handler, Charlotte Handler, Deborah Gill, 2011 Teaches medical students and all medical and paramedical staff to write reflective essays and less formal reflective pieces clearly concisely and accurately

A New Writing Classroom Patrick Sullivan, 2014-11-15 In A New Writing Classroom Patrick Sullivan provides a new generation of teachers a means and a rationale to reconceive their approach to teaching writing calling into question the discipline's dependence on argument Including secondary writing teachers within his purview Sullivan advocates a more diverse exploratory and flexible approach to writing activities in grades six through thirteen A New Writing Classroom encourages teachers to pay more attention to research in learning theory transfer of learning international models for nurturing excellence in the classroom and recent work in listening to teach students the sort of dialogic stance that leads to higher order thinking and more sophisticated communication The conventional argumentative essay is often a simplistic form of argument widely believed to be the most appropriate type of writing in English classes but other kinds of writing may be more valuable to students and offer more important kinds of cognitive challenges Focusing on listening and dispositions or habits of mind as central elements of this new composition pedagogy A New Writing Classroom draws not just on composition studies but also on cognitive psychology philosophy learning theory literature and history making an exciting and significant contribution to the field

Student Self-Evaluation: Fostering Reflective Learning Jean MacGregor, 1993 For several decades college teachers have been asking students to engage in self evaluation to reflect on their academic work and describe and evaluate it in writing Student self evaluation is both a process consisting of acts of reflecting composing and writing and a product a written document Student self evaluation does not obviate the need for student exams and papers crucial indicators of student mastery of material or complexity of thinking Rather student self evaluation supplements and complements that information by asking students to describe in their own words their learning and its value to them This writing and the conversations that faculty members and students have about it can be instructional illuminating and at times transformative Student self evaluation is primarily a learning strategy but it is also a promising assessment approach while enriching learning for students it also can help teachers and institutions learn about student learning This volume of New Directions for Teaching and Learning introduces the many forms of student self evaluation in undergraduate teaching settings and describes how student self evaluation creates connections between learners and learning knowers and the known and the self and the mind This is the 56th issue of the quarterly journal New Directions for Teaching and Learning For more information on the series please see the Journals and Periodicals page

Freedom to Learn Bruce Macfarlane, 2016-08-12 The freedom of students to learn at university is being eroded by a performative culture that fails to respect their rights to engage and develop as autonomous adults Instead students are being restricted in how they learn when they learn and what they learn by the so called student engagement movement Compulsory attendance registers class contribution grading group project work and reflective learning exercises based on expectations of self disclosure and confession take little account of the rights of students or individual differences between them This new hidden university curriculum is intolerant of students who may prefer to learn informally are reticent shy or simply value their privacy Three forms of student performativity have arisen bodily participative and emotional which threaten the freedom to learn Key themes include A re imagining of student academic freedom The democratic student experience Challenging assumptions of the student engagement movement An examination of university policies and practices Freedom to Learn offers a radically new perspective on academic freedom from a student rights standpoint It analyzes the effects of performative expectations on students drawing on the distinction between negative and positive rights to re frame student academic freedom It argues that students need to be thought of as scholars with rights and that the phrase student centred learning needs to be reclaimed to reflect its original intention to allow students to develop as persons Student rights to non indoctrination reticence in choosing how to learn and in being treated like an adult ought to be central to this process in fostering a democratic rather authoritarian culture of learning and teaching at university Written for an international readership this book will be of great interest to anyone involved in higher education policy and practice drawing on a wide range of historical and contemporary literature related to sociology philosophy and higher education studies
