Interaction: How Do People Respond to Threats in Social Interactions? Eva Jonas, Christina Mühlberger, 2018-01-12 If we want to understand people's responses to threats in social interactions we can distinguish between three levels of analysis. On a social level of analysis we can describe people's interpersonal behavior; on a cognitive level we can identify corresponding information processing mechanisms; and on a neural level we can specify neural systems which underlie these processes. In this Research Topic we want to present research connecting these three levels of analysis and propose their functional interconnection in social interaction. We propose that threats in social interactions activate basic motivational processes which manifest in neural processes related to behavioral inhibition vs activation in a social situation. This shapes our attention to new information and affects our cognitions about social identities, belief systems, and worldviews. These changes in social cognition in turn affect people's behavior in social interactions and lead to corresponding reactions on behalf of the interaction partner. Thus we assume that people's reactions to threat in interactions can be described as sequences of broader attentional processes resulting from basic motivational tendencies leading to specific social cognitions and subsequent behavior within social interactions. We can analyze this sequence in order to contribute to a better understanding of social interactions. The three levels of analyses (social, cognitive, neural) shed light on social interactions from different angles. On the social level we can analyze how the behaviors of the interaction partners mutually affect each other and how this is accompanied by specific cognitive, emotional, and motivational processes. On the cognitive level we can analyze people's perception of a social situation leading to attentional and reasoning processes with regard to their interaction partner's which may be accompanied by certain emotional and motivational processes and determines the behavior towards the partner's. Finally we can focus on the neural mechanisms underlying cognitive, emotional, and motivational processes in social interactions.

Sport and Exercise Psychology Julia Schüller, Mirko Wegner, Henning Plessner, Robert C. Eklund, 2023-02-25 This textbook covers topics in sport and exercise psychology for students of psychology and sport science as well as for sport practitioners who want to understand topics in sport psychology in more detail and depth. The book is divided into two main parts: Theory and Application. The first part covers the theoretical facets of sport and exercise psychology and the close link between theory and practice, divided into the sub-disciplines of psychology, cognition, motivation, emotion, personality, and development, and social processes. The second part focuses on the applications of sport and exercise psychology in the context of performance and health. With contributions from scholars across the globe, the book offers an international and timely perspective on the key fundamentals of sport psychology. Taken together, these chapters provide a challenging yet accessible overview of the larger field of sport and exercise psychology. This book is suitable for readers at different levels of competence, supported with didactic elements, learning objectives, and learning control questions to find the right learning level.

Frameworks for Multi-Tiered Systems of Support for Trauma-Informed Educational Settings Aniano, Jennifer Lauren, 2025-05-02 The use of multi-tiered systems of support

MTSS in schools has implications for social and cultural development. It provides the opportunity for empowerment and inclusion of students who are often overlooked or struggling to adapt such as multilingual neurodiverse and sexually exploited students. Increased competency in understanding and utilizing MTSS may provide teachers with opportunities for professional development. Effective teacher training is often necessary for creating affirming safe and equitable educational environments. Further research into the MTSS framework may challenge educators to include social and restorative justice practices in the classroom. Frameworks for Multi Tiered Systems of Support for Trauma Informed Educational Settings highlights the importance of anti racism cultural competence and social emotional learning in education settings. It explores the role of social justice and restorative justice in building trauma informed educational settings. Covering topics such as anti racist education family therapy and math anxiety this book is an excellent resource for school administrators policymakers educators researchers academicians and more.
