Marshall's organization is a relatively young organization. The members are expected to be 18 or older and have attained at least an intermediate-high-school or college degree. However, members need not be students or college graduates. The club was the first in the United States that gave boys aged as low as 14 the opportunity to learn the principles of the program, and that engaged in meaningful service projects. As the organization's membership, programs, and the financial resources supporting the organization grew, the program's membership was broadened to include all ages and levels of education. The club is a national organization serving thousands of members and leaders across the United States, and is the only youth organization in the world that is based on service.

The government has since taken steps to improve the situation, but shortages of essential goods and services remain a problem in some areas.
