Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 10-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and energy expenditure (EE) of sedentary, middle-aged women. The subjects were 10 women, 40 to 50 years of age, who were sedentary and had no cardiovascular or pulmonary disease. The subjects were randomly assigned to a 10-week training program or a control group. The training program consisted of three sessions per week of aerobic exercise at 60% of maximum HR. The control group did not exercise. The subjects were monitored for HR and EE during the training program and for 10 weeks after the training program. The results showed that the training program had a significant effect on HR and EE. The HR of the training group decreased significantly from 170 to 155 beats per minute (b·min⁻¹) during the training program and remained at this level for 10 weeks after the training program. The EE of the training group increased significantly from 1,800 to 2,200 kcal·day⁻¹ during the training program and remained at this level for 10 weeks after the training program. The control group did not show any significant changes in HR or EE. The results of this study suggest that a 10-week training program can have a significant effect on HR and EE in sedentary, middle-aged women.

- Day and night periods that are longer than the standard 24 hours occur most commonly with the use of artificial light or other light sources. To avoid this, there are two things the producer should do:
 - Turn off the lights at the end of the work day.
 - Use red light for night shifts, as the wavelength of this light may be less disruptive to the circadian rhythm. Red light has the longest wavelength and the lowest energy, so it is least likely to affect the circadian rhythm. Some studies suggest that the 660 nm (red) light may be the best choice for night shifts.

When you install your T-Value One Connection, improper installation of all four screws (50 combinations for One Connection) will void the warranty. Please, before installing, refer to the correct installation instructions. Failure to maintain proper ventilation may result in a serious problem with the product.

- When a producer's price for the output rises or falls, it must adjust its output level accordingly. A rise in the price of the output will cause a producer to produce more, and a fall in the price of the output will cause a producer to produce less.

- 20 Do not test the power switch on the immersion pump, or otherwise test the pump in the water and especially if the water contains any materials that interfere with the power specifications outlined in the test and maintenance procedures listed on the product for voltage and temperature information
- 21 Do not touch the power switch or the power cord while they are energized for the reason that on a grounded system, a grounded object energized from the plug can cause electrical shocks or electrical fires if it falls into the water or on the premises as they exit the building
- 22 Do not use the pump in the water without only the power switch and power cord. This may void the electric shock
- 23 Do not touch the switch, or use the switch in the water if the equipment is damaged. Contact your distributor for more power specifications
- 24 Do not plug the power cord into a two-pronged or a three-pronged plug that is not properly grounded. Do not use an extension cord, always plug the power cord's plug into a receptacle or by plugging into the power cord. Do not touch the power cord while it is energized
- 25 Do not plug the cord into any electrical receptacle in a wet area if there are any conductive materials or materials coming from a coupling of materials or if the cord is not in the electrical outlet or is touching metal contacts
- 26 Do not use the pump in the water if there is a lightning storm, or if the area is not protected by lightning rods or lightning rods are not grounded to the earth. Do not use the pump in the water if there is any possibility of an electrical fire or if the pump is not plugged into the wall outlet or if the pump is not connected to the electrical wiring system
- 27 Do not use the pump in the water if there is a lightning storm, or if the area is not protected by lightning rods or lightning rods are not grounded to the earth. Do not use the pump in the water if there is any possibility of an electrical fire or if the pump is not plugged into the wall outlet or if the pump is not connected to the electrical wiring system
