emissions to Net Zero by 2050 Travel Behaviour Reconsidered in an Era of Decarbonisation argues that our transport networks are mature and the objective should be to improve operational efficiency Over the past half century large public expenditures in roads and railways were justified by an analytic approach to the benefits of investment primarily the value of the time saved through faster travel to both business and non business users of the networks However average travel time has not changed over this period People have taken the benefit of faster travel as better access to people places activities and services with the ensuing enhanced opportunities and choices This book argues that the basis of orthodox transport economic analysis has been misconceived and a fresh perspective on economic analysis is now needed The New GP's
