

REFLECTION PAPER ABOUT TEACHING SOCIAL STUDIES in the INTERMEDIATE GRADES

Usually the impression of students for Social Studies is boring subject. Students are thinking that Social Studies are more on memorizing names, dates, places and significant events. But it's not. I understand that teaching Social Studies to intermediate grades is very crucial. Teaching Social Studies is very interesting because the teacher of Social Studies can contribute big impact and can influenced more the young children on how they become a good citizen someday. Why? Because teacher should be the guiding way on how the students connect the past to present and to future. Through Social Studies the young children might be develop their potential in critical thinking skills and problem solving skills. The discussion for AS6SS2 focuses on what teachers do, what are the different strategies, how to assess children and guidelines for teachers to follow. This subject taught me that it is important for students to personalize history so they can relate it to current events. I have learned also that it is important to have a strong literature connected to Social Studies so that children can deepen their understanding. Then nowadays I learned that the ways of teaching must be integrated to other subject. That's why as a future educator it is important to remember that children need to be exposed to a variety of ideas. This way, children will be able to form their own opinions based on multiple perspective.

Teaching Social Studies in intermediate grades is not just simply informing them for what is the past. As I mentioned above, through Social Studies the children will develop their critical thinking skills and problem solving skills. These skills were discussed in Chapter 6. It was indicated on this chapter the different process how to solve the problems. Facing problems and difficulties sometimes people went to wrong values and morality but the teacher must influence students on how to deals problems. We need to view the problems as opportunity to grow. On this way, children broaden their understanding if what the life is. The teacher should direct the students as they hone problem-solving skills. Good teacher should know that the problem solving is important in child development. That's why teacher in Social Studies need to incorporate problem solving exercise into a wide range of classes. The teacher must have goal to ignite the intellectual inquiry by combining problem solving with creativity, collaboration and communication. Empower also the students to become actively engaged in the community activities to become good citizen in the future.

There are lots of techniques and strategies discussed for this subject but my reflection will revolve on "Preparing Children to Solve Problems" (Chapter 6) because I want to imply that Social Studies is not just memorizing different events. I would like to change the mind set and impression of students and other teachers too. I would like to highlight that the teacher in Social Studies have great value and impact how to mold the new generation into a good citizen of our country and to the whole world.

Now let me share to you the positive effect if the teacher in Social Studies will effectively develop his/her students for problem solving skills. One reason that problem solving is important in child development is that it teaches judgment, helps them to develop if what is the solvable problem. If the students regularly practice problem solving, they develop flexibility and can develop improve their academic performance. Problem solving is important in child development because confident, capable children usually grow into confident, capable adults. Problem solving also develops determination, a trait that successful routine display. Students who learn how to solve problems have a deeper
