Scientific Agriculture, 1924 Life M. Kronegger, Anna-Teresa Tymieniecka, 2012-12-06

In her Introduction Tymieniecka states the core theme of the present book sharply: Is culture an excess of nature's prodigious expansiveness, an excess which might turn out to be dangerous for nature itself if it goes too far, or is culture a natural congenial prolongation of nature life? If the latter, then culture is assimilated into nature and thus would lose its claim to autonomy; its criteria would be superseded by those of nature alone. Of course, nature and culture may both still be seen as being absorbed by the inner powers of specifically human inwardness, on which view human being caught in its own transcendence becomes separated radically in kind from the rest of existence and may not touch even the shadow of reality except through its own prism. Excess, therefore, or prolongation. And on what terms? The relationship between culture and nature in its technical phase demands a new elucidation. Here this is pursued by excavating the root significance of the multiple rationalities of life. In contrast to Husserl, who differentiated living types according to their degree of participation in the world, the phenomenology of life disentangles living types from within the onto-poietic web of life itself. The human creative act reveals itself as the Great Divide of the Logos of Life, a divide that does not separate but harmonizes, thus dispelling both naturalistic and spiritualistic reductionism.

Axiological Pluralism Lucia Busatta,Carlo Casonato,2021-09-02 This book analyses the features and functionality of the relationship between the law individual or collective values and medical scientific evidence when they have to be interpreted by judges courts and para jurisdictional bodies The various degrees to which scientific data and moral values have been integrated into the legal discourse reveal the need for a systematic review of the options and solutions that judges have elaborated on In turn the book presents a systematic approach based on a proposed pattern for classifying these various degrees together with an in depth analysis of the multi layered role of jurisdictions and the means available to them for properly handling new legal demands arising in plural societies The book outlines a model that makes it possible to focus on and address these issues in a sustainable manner that is to respond to individual requests and technological advances in the field of biolaw by consistently and effectively applying suitable legal instruments and jurisdictional interpretation

A Treatise on the Law of Executors and Administrators Sir Edward Vaughan Williams,1921

L'écriture du bonheur dans le roman contemporain Ruth Amar,2011-01-18 Through the ages the pursuit of Happiness has been at the heart of the needs and desires each individual would seek to fulfill while as a concept Happiness has always resonated strongly in poetic as well as philosophical sociological and psychological contexts But what about Happiness today in a world dominated by technology driven by productivity and dictated by efficiency Does Happiness still feature in contemporary fiction in any significant way Or has it perhaps gone underground adopting different guises Would we still call that duty of happiness that Pascal Bruckner saw as present at the second half of the twentieth century a relevant force today Or has it waned perceptibly The articles brought together in this volume seek to work out answers to these and similar questions creatively addressing the imminent risks but also eagerly following up the intriguing possibilities one encounters when interrogating Happiness in the contemporary novel Originally based on an international conference organized at the University of Haifa Israel in May 2010 the volume is structured around the axes we found useful as a basis for the various approaches towards Happiness in Europe and the historical and social events that influenced the writing of Happiness as they defined the 20th century and have impacted on the 21st the Holocaust the Soviet dystopia consumerism postmodernism everyday life the various as yet unarticulated new modes of life they have given rise to and so on A new writing of happiness then At the very least this volume targets the contemporary novel without wanting to solidify works instead taking into account the fluctuations Happiness has been subjected to and the diversity and especially the paradoxes it has created while we have been keen to preserve a precise reading of the texts and have felt compelled to respect and preserve the particular features that make the writings of the authors we focus on stand out. The philosophical as well as the political, sociological and psychological, the happiness defines the measure of each. Isn't it true that we other men, we all are happy. Plato. Or in our current world dominated by technique, the research of productivity and of efficiency, is it the happiness. Is it still present in the Romanesque and contemporary. Under what forms would it be researched. This duty of happiness proper to the twentieth century since which, as Pascal Bruckner continues, it is always there or actually is it reinforced or on the contrary is it weakened. The project of a questioning of happiness in the contemporary novel carried great risks but it offered in the meantime stimulating possibilities. At the suite of the international colloquium organized by the University of Haifa in May 2010, the texts gathered in this book seek to laborer the elements of response to these questions. The volume offers a state of the art of happiness in the novel since 1980 and presents a large diversity of approaches, definitions, interrogations on the critique of happiness over three centuries. The collection is articulated around four axes which served as the basis for the different approaches of happiness in Europe and of events, historical and social, which have influenced the critique of happiness in the different periods of the twentieth and twenty-first centuries such as the Holocaust, the dystopia in Russia, the postmodernism and the consumerism, the everyday, the different paradoxes of happiness, the new modes of life. New critique of happiness. At the least, this volume wishes to be contemporary without freezing the works, while taking into account the fluctuations of the subject, its diversity, its paradoxes, especially while conserving the reading of precise texts and while respecting the particularity of the critique of the authors. Proceedings of the International Association for Testing Materials ...
