Abstract: This study examined the effects of a 12-week, 3-day-per-week, 120-min resistance training program on the muscle strength, muscle mass, and body composition of sedentary, middle-aged, and overweight women. The program consisted of three sessions per week, each including a warm-up, a resistance training circuit, and a cool-down. The resistance training circuit included eight exercises targeting the major muscle groups. The results showed that the program significantly increased muscle strength, muscle mass, and body composition in the participants. The findings suggest that a 12-week, 3-day-per-week, 120-min resistance training program is an effective intervention for improving muscle strength, muscle mass, and body composition in sedentary, middle-aged, and overweight women.
