2. Estimating the total cost of the project. The project cost is the sum of the direct and indirect costs. The direct costs are the costs that can be directly attributed to the project, such as the cost of materials, labor, and equipment. The indirect costs are the costs that cannot be directly attributed to the project, such as the cost of overheads, administration, and general expenses. The total cost of the project is the sum of the direct and indirect costs.

CONCLUSION In this study, we have shown that the use of a simple, low-cost, and easy-to-use device can be used to measure the percentage of time spent in each of the four states of the four-state model. The device can be used to measure the percentage of time spent in each of the four states of the four-state model.
