Cruess, Yvonne Steinert, 2016-03-29 This book presents ideas evidence and guidance for those interested in using the most recent advances in knowledge about learning and human development to enhance medical education's ability to form competent caring and publicly responsible physicians It does this by establishing the development of a professional identity in medical students and residents as a primary goal of medical education This new approach is emerging from experience and experiment by medical educators articulating a new way of understanding their mission It is an optimistic book the voices are those of the leaders theorists and experienced practitioners who have found in this new approach a promising way to confront the challenges of a new era in medicine It summarizes the theoretical basis of identity formation outlines our current knowledge of how best to assist learners as they acquire a professional identity and addresses the issue of assessment of progress towards this goal

The Advanced Handbook of Methods in Evidence Based Healthcare Andrew Stevens, Keith Abrams, John Brazier, Ray Fitzpatrick, Richard Lilford, 2001-01-02 This handbook is an excellent reflection of the growing maturity and methodological sophistication of the field of Health Technology Assessment The Handbook covers a spectrum of issues from primary evidence clinical trials through reviews and meta analysis to identifying and filling gaps in the evidence Up to date clearly written and well edited the handbook is a needed addition to any personal or professional library dealing with Health Technology Assessment Professor David Banta TNO Prevention and Health The Netherlands This text presents the most advanced knowledge on methodology in health care research and will form the backbone of many future studies Paula Roberts Nurse Researcher The effectiveness revolution both in research and clinical practice has tested available methods for health services research to the extreme How far can observational methods routine data and qualitative methods be used in health care evaluation What cost and outcome measures are appropriate and how should data be gathered With the support of over two million pounds from the British Health Technology Assessment Research Programme the research project for this Handbook has led to both a synthesis of all of the existing knowledge in these areas and an agenda for future debate and research The chapters and their authors have been selected through a careful process of peer review and provide a coherent and complete approach to the field The handbook has been a unique collaboration between internationally regarded clinicians statisticians epidemiologists social scientists health economists and ethicists It provides the most advanced thinking and the most authoritative resource for a state of the art review of methods of evaluating health care and will be required reading for anyone involved in health services research and management

Leading Change in Healthcare Anthony L Suchman, 2022-02-14 The challenge of transforming organizational culture is at the heart of many key movements in contemporary healthcare and understanding culture change has become a core leadership competency However much current practice is based on antiquated and psychologically unsophisticated theories leaving leaders inadequately prepared for the complex task of implementing change Leading Change in Healthcare presents relationship centered administration an effective new evidence based alternative to traditional culture change methodologies

It integrates fresh insights and methods from complexity science positive psychology and relationship centered care enabling a more spontaneous and reflective approach to change management This fosters greater organizational awareness and real participation as well as improved productivity and creativity as well as staff recruitment and retention Case studies drawn from primary care hospitals long term care professional education international NGOs and other settings rather than emphasizing the end results are demonstrations of how to apply relationship centered administration in everyday practice
