Reconstructing Response to Student Writing Dan Melzer, 2023-08-07 In Reconstructing Response to Student Writing Dan Melzer makes the argument that writing instructors should shift the construct so that peer response and student self assessment are more central than teacher response Presenting the results of a national study of teacher and peer response and student self assessment at institutions of higher education across the United States Melzer analyzes teacher and peer response to over 1 000 pieces of student writing as well as 128 student portfolio reflection essays He draws on his analysis and on a comprehensive review of the literature on response to introduce a constructivist heuristic for response aimed at both composition instructors and instructors across disciplines Melzer argues that teachers and researchers should focus less on teacher response to individual pieces of student writing and more on engaging in dialogue with student self assessment and peer response focusing on growth and transfer rather than products and grades Reconstructing Response to Student Writing especially when taken together with Melzer's previous book Assignments across the Curriculum provides a comprehensive and large scale view of college writing and responding across the curriculum in the United States

Transformative Experiences in College Neal Christopherson, 2020-11-24 Transformative Experiences in College Connections and Community explores the intersection of two concepts transformative experience in college and the communities in which students learn Emerging from a five year longitudinal interview study tracking a panel of 75 students through four years at a selective liberal arts college this book provides a rich depiction of how aspects of the college community and the relationships developed within that community create opportunities for transformative experiences that lead to personal and academic growth Neal Christopherson argues that transformative experiences in college are primarily the results of interactions with other people and with a broader campus community documenting the ways in which relationships with faculty experiences in courses interaction with peers and the general institutional environment can generate these experiences Christopherson also touches on extracurricular and co curricular activities the importance of a healthy environment for interacting with difference and how students transition out of the institution. Scholars of education, sociology, and communication will find this book particularly useful. This nine chapter book narrates a writing centered approach to the teaching of literature and literary research. As the title suggests, the book also embraces a thematic approach to reading and writing about twentieth century American literature, focusing on the grounds for hope in an age of despair. The first five chapters explore in detail the teaching of the twentieth century American literature course at the University of Pristina in Kosovo, where the author served as Fulbright Professor of American Literature in the spring semester of 2012. Throughout these chapters, students in class interactions illustrate writing to learn strategies for teaching the literature. Chapter six then follows the same cohort of 22 students as they learned to ground their literary research in their own questions about American and Balkan narratives of oppression and liberty, of despair and hope. The last three chapters document the responses of students and their professors to this American theme of liberty and hope as seen through the Balkan lenses of ethnic violence and emerging republican government. Specifically, chapter seven focuses on students' participation in a blog featuring Balkan literature that explores the same issues of liberty and justice examined in the American literature they have read. Chapter eight then celebrates student writing, the fruit of the writing to learn strategies narrated in earlier chapters. Finally, chapter nine narrates professors' and students' responses gathered through surveys and interviewing to questions about their country's violent past and the value of literary study in preparing citizens to shape a new republic. Revisiting EFL Assessment Rahma Al-Mahrooqi, Christine Coombe, Faisal Al-Maamari, Vijay Thakur, 2017-01-10.
