Graphic Kingsley Inkoom,2014-09-02 Implementing Triple Bottom Line Sustainability into Global Supply Chains Lydia Bals,Wendy Tate,2017-09-08 The global sustainability challenge is urgent tremendous and increasing From an ecological perspective the current worldwide resource footprint requires approximately 1.5 planets to sustain existing life and with current usage would require two planets by 2030. The social impact of ever growing resource use disproportionately affects the world's poor, the 3 billion people living on less than $2.50 a day as they struggle to acquire what is needed to survive. The serious ecological and social challenges we face in trying to establish global sustainable supply chains must not be underestimated yet so far research has largely ignored the social dimension in favour of the environmental and economic. So how can we develop business strategies that move away from a primary economic focus and give equal weight to people, planet and profit? How can we create sustainable supply chains that take a true triple bottom line approach? Implementing Triple Bottom Line Sustainability into Global Supply Chains features innovative research highlighting new cases, approaches and concepts in how to successfully implement sustainability covering economic, ecological and social dimensions into global supply chains. The four parts cover the rationale for sustainable global supply chains, key enablers, case studies showing clear implementation steps and directions for future research and development. This book is a must read for any academic researching in sustainable supply chain management, procurement or business strategy and for business leaders seeking cases that will inform a critical step forward for CSR programmes.

Politics and International Relations in Eurasia

Stylianos A. Sotiriou, 2019-03-28

Eurasia has long been characterized by intense competition among populations and among States. The collapse of the Soviet Union constituted a critical juncture in the region's course since informal and formal norms subsided giving rise to a hardly regulated socio-political environment where survival and security considerations ranked atop. In this context populations first and foremost sought to have their existence guaranteed within nation states. While in most cases that transition was accomplished without major impediments in the cases of Moldova, Ukraine, Georgia and Azerbaijan major challenges have been encountered leaving their mark deep in the post-soviet course of the newly independent republics. Moldova has been rattled by the conflict in Transdniestria, Ukraine by the conflict in Crimea, Georgia by the conflict in South Ossetia and Abkhazia and Azerbaijan by the conflict in Nagorno Karabakh. In fact these conflicts have been classified as frozen conflicts given their unsettled nature and the smoldering fire between opposing populations within the respective republics. This intense competition however has not been constrained only to the domestic level and only to the issue of frozen conflicts. Eurasia's energy prospects have also been the cause of a constant power struggle among the States of the region. With the Caspian Sea to constitute a rich in natural resources hub a clash of interests has taken place among the littoral States. Moreover this competition has acquired a much broader geopolitical dimension extending to Eurasia's two ends, the European Union and China. As a result Eurasia's underbelly has become an area where the maximization of power figures as the best guarantee of survival and security in a fully unregulated environment. Taken together frozen conflicts, domestic level and energy politics, international level stand out as the two main features of Eurasia both unfolding in comparable conditions. Therefore the book presents them as a two-level game aiming at offering better substantiated explanations that draw on the very fundamentals of political science and at building a bridge of communication between the two levels that allows for well informed and widely applicable policy implications The First Atomic Bomb Jim

Mangi,2022-06-20 While German and Japanese scientists also labored unsuccessfully to create an atomic bomb by the summer of 1945 the American led team was ready to test its first weapon As the clock ticked down to the detonation time of 05 30 hours on 16 July 1945 the nervous team of technicians and scientists waited ten miles away from Ground Zero deep in the New Mexico desert No one knew how powerful the explosion would be or whether even at such a distance they would be safe from the blast Even so some chose to observe the detonation from a point four miles nearer at the control bunker but then no one was even sure that the bomb would work What if that is actually what happened Under schedule pressure from the White House the scientists assembled the device in part with tape and tissue paper knowing some components were flawed These are verifiable facts It means that as many of those who gathered in the New Mexico desert feared at the time the bomb might not have worked during that first test In The First Atomic Bomb Jim Mangi explores what might happened in the event that the world s first atomic bomb had not been ready for use when it was How would this have affected the end of the war in the Pacific and indeed the Second World War as a whole Would Emperor Hirohito s armed forces have battled on When might Colonel Paul W Tibbets at the controls of his Boeing B 29 Superfortress Enola Gay have then made his historic flight over Hiroshima and would that city even have remained the target How would Stalin and the Soviets have reacted to such developments and how would this have played out in the post war world Origination Andy Pike,2015-06-02

Who Was Responsible for the Troubles? Liam Kennedy, 2020-09-23 The Troubles claimed the lives of almost four thousand people in Northern Ireland most of them civilians forty five thousand were injured in bombings and shootings Relative to population size this was the most intense conflict experienced in Western Europe since the end of the Second World War The central question posed in this book is fundamental yet it is one that has rarely been asked Who was primarily responsible for the prosecution of the Troubles and their attendant toll of the dead the injured and the emotionally traumatized Liam Kennedy who lived in Belfast throughout most of the conflict was long afraid to raise the question and its implications After years of reflection and research on the matter he has brought together elements of history politics sociology and social psychology to identify the collective actors who drove the conflict onwards for more than three decades from the days of the civil rights movement in the late 1960s to the signing of the Good Friday Agreement in 1998 The Troubles in Northern Ireland are a world class problem in miniature The combustible mix of national ethnic and sectarian passions that went into the making of the conflict has its parallels today in other parts of the world Who Was Responsible for the Troubles is an original and controversial work that captures the terror and the pain but also the hope of life and the pursuit of happiness in a deeply divided society

The Resilience of Cultural Landscapes Fabrizio Aimar, 2024-04-23 This book explores the possibility of building the resilience of the UNESCO cultural landscapes both using theoretical conceptions and practical strategies and actions Two case studies have been selected one in Italy and one in China which have then been explored for the first time in such a comparative way Different notions of landscape as well as the driving force of changes affecting these landscapes are examined and compared Moreover the perceptions of the local communities regarding these landscapes are examined using online questionnaires with over 400 participants This research highlights the need for an integrated management system building stronger rural communities able to manage change and continuity Five pillars to build the resilience of these landscapes have been provided with schemes and figures requiring a people centered approach in their management This book demonstrates strong connections between identity and landscape resilience especially in inland areas where the sense of identity is most prominent

Furthermore it is structured to make it possible to replicate this investigation in ordinary case studies i.e. ordinary landscapes Scholars and professionals interested in cultural landscapes and heritage conservation are target of this book as well as site managers

Zero-Waste Atiq Zaman, Tahmina Ahsan, 2019-12-06 This book analyses zero waste ZW as an emerging waste management strategy for the future which considers waste prevention through innovative design and sustainable consumption practices Drawing on a diverse range of case studies from Australia Bangladesh Japan New Zealand Sweden and the USA this book explores why urban waste management systems still remain a major challenge for almost all cities around the world Rejecting waste as an end of life problem Atiq Zaman and Tahmina Ahsan instead consider waste prevention through the ZW model in which resources are utilized and consumed with minimum environmental degradation In addition the authors give extended discussion on why embracing the ZW concept will be beneficial for the circular economy CE Providing a strategic zero waste framework and an evaluation tool to measure waste management performance aimed towards ZW goals this book will be of great relevance to students scholars and policymakers with an interest in waste management sustainable consumption urban planning and sustainable development

Women's Work Jennifer Moore,2025-03-11 When women have full socioeconomic citizenship as well as equitable and respectful partnerships with men transformative justice can be sustained in postconflict societies In Women s Work Jennifer Moore presents a reimagined theory of peacebuilding and transformative justice based on the experiences and insights of women farmers and microentrepreneurs who lived through protracted civil conflicts drawing on seven years of interviews with women activists across ten communities five in the Acholi region of Northern Uganda and five in the Moyamba and Koinadugu Districts of

Sierra Leone Despite the important differences between the preconflict and conflict histories and demographics of the two countries Moore finds commonalities in the practical yet visionary approaches to community life emerging from the core values daily activities and long range goals shared by rural cooperative members in both regions Collective survival communal healing and conflict resolution define the rhythm of these women s daily lives as they go about building peace piecemeal They reject punitive retribution models and demand instead a peacebuilding model that advocates for advances in material well being the acknowledgment of state accountability for community suffering and reconciliation and restoration of community networks But most important Moore amplifies these women s voices when they insist that legal equality for women and healthy partnerships between women and men are also essential components to enduring transformation of their societies Moore theorizes what peacebuilding look like if it were modeled on these women led matriarchically structured communities that proved not only to be effective at holding governments accountable but also to have the capacity to feed their people and revitalize their local economies Women s Work shows that when women have full socioeconomic citizenship as well as equitable and respectful partnerships with men transformative justice can be sustained through the arts of collective livelihood violence free conflict management and celebration
