

PHOTOLYSE STEMS AND LEAVES

Plants have structures that allow them to absorb light energy and convert it into glucose and oxygen.

Light energy from the sun is used to make glucose.

There are two main types of photosynthesis:

- C₃ pathway (most common)
- C₄ pathway (more common in hot climates)

Photosynthesis occurs in the chloroplasts of plant cells.

Chloroplasts are organelles found in plant cells. They contain green pigments called chlorophylls, which absorb light energy and use it to convert carbon dioxide and water into glucose and oxygen.

Glucose is used for energy.

Glucose is the main source of energy for plants. It is used for a variety of purposes, including growth, reproduction, and maintenance. Glucose is also used to produce energy through cellular respiration. This process involves the breakdown of glucose into carbon dioxide and water, which are then used to produce energy in the form of ATP.
