Health Care Restructuring Lois Morton, 2001 Competitive health care markets are unable to produce the health status goals Americans have set for themselves Market driven health care replaces health status goals with profitability goals Competitive markets can only respond to the biomedical model of health care services They can't alter structural characteristics of poverty disease and injury that are the root sources of health care costs and health status outcomes Civic community a variation of civil society offers a third way as opposed to markets and government command systems of restructuring health care by addressing the root causes of the current system's shortcomings When given space to act civic community is able to set new rules and guidelines that mediate and redirect excessive competitive markets and an intrusive government Civic community is a conscious undertaking by individuals within and across multiple organizations to through dialogue and actions shape the function of society in this case the restructuring of the health care function In civic community organizations set aside self interest to achieve a common interest allocation of scarce resources for the public good Dr Morton an assistant professor of sociology examines large scale processes and regionalized response to changing health care environments Empirical findings case studies and archival documents support her contention that the civic community model can provide governments with a road map for setting regulations monitoring and enforcing practices relating to baseline health care and provider and insurer behaviors When the automatic behavior of health care markets is directed and channeled by civic community there is emerging evidence that preferred health outcomes at affordable prices are possible President's Proposals for Revision in the Social Security System United States.
