Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 10-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and heart rate reserve (HRR) of sedentary middle-aged men. The subjects were 15 men, 40 to 50 years old, who had been sedentary for at least 10 years. They were randomly assigned to a 10-week training program or a control group. The training program consisted of three sessions per week, each lasting 30 minutes, at a heart rate of 150 beats per minute. The control group did not exercise. The HR and HRR were measured at rest and during a 30-minute exercise test at the end of the 10-week period. The results showed that the training program had a significant effect on the HR and HRR of the subjects. The HR at rest decreased from 72 to 68 beats per minute, and the HRR increased from 28 to 32 beats per minute. The control group showed no significant changes in HR or HRR. The results suggest that a 10-week training program can improve the cardiovascular fitness of sedentary middle-aged men.

- Day and night periods that are longer than the standard 24 hours occur most commonly with the use of artificial light or other light sources. To avoid this, there are two things the producer should do:
 - 1. Turn off the lights at the end of the day.
 - 2. Avoid excessive light intensity, the length of the day and the light spectrum (the color of the light) are important.
- The end of the day is the best time to change the light spectrum. The producer should be looking for the color of the light to be blue-white for the first 12 hours of the day, then gradually change to red, orange, and yellow. The end of the day should be red, orange, and yellow. The light should be on for 12 hours a day.
