Introduction: policing in Australia

The functions of policing

Police protect people from crime: from assault, sexual assault, murder, robbery, theft, harassment, fraud and many other threats to their well-being. A police force is, therefore, a vital institution in the realisation of the fundamental democratic values of freedom, security, safety, equality and justice.

British Home Secretary Robert Peel put policing on a professional footing with salaries, uniforms, selection criteria and

- The primary object of an efficient police is the prevention of crime: the next that of detection and punishment of offenders if crime is committed.
- The foot patrol officer is still a mainstay of policing in many locations, but modern policing functions have developed well beyond this simple picture.
- One of the first major adaptations to the patrol system was the creation of detective units to conduct follow-up investigations in cases where the identity of the offender was not immediately apparent or where evidence needed to be enlarged.
- A third, and later, adaptation was the development of specialist squads for specific tasks. These are highly varied. A sampler includes: water police, who patrol waterways, conduct searches in rivers and intercept shipping, dog squads, to support foot pursuits and guarding special operations units - originally known as SWAT (Special Weapons and Tactics) teams - who have advanced training and equipment for raids, sieges and riots, scientific officers

Police Powers: called 'the gatekeepers of the criminal justice system'

- To perform police functions, especially those that involve restraint of citizens and use of force, police use a variety of legal powers. These powers are drawn historically from the general powers of citizens to arrest offenders and to use force to protect people and property (depending on factors such as the severity of the offence or threat).
- State and territory parliaments (and the national parliament with respect to the Australian Federal Police) have passed specific laws giving powers to police well above those of ordinary citizens. These include such things as 'move on' powers, the right to demand a person's name and address, the capacity to hold people without charge for limited periods, the authority to disperse crowds and to apply to install a listening device and conduct a search
- Police also have better protection than ordinary citizens against actions for false arrest should they make a mistake
