Synthesis of Cannabinoid Ligands Thomas Hurrell, 2018-10-26 Since the discovery of the endocannabinoid system, cannabis and cannabinoids have received renewed attention. The elucidation of the biochemical machinery responsible for cannabinoid effects has led to the identification of several targets that can be addressed by cannabinoid analogs. The most prominent targets are the cannabinoid receptors CB1 and CB2. The endocannabinoid system acts as a versatile regulating system found in mammals that is involved in a broad range of physiological and neuronal processes. Accordingly, cannabinoid ligands have been proposed for the treatment of a large number of diseases and symptoms including cancer, multiple sclerosis, and AIDS. In the present thesis, several strategies to address the endocannabinoid system were pursued. Besides the synthesis of well over a hundred potentially active new compounds based on the lead structure of the potent cannabinoid analogs, 3-benzylcoumarins, a formal total synthesis of tetrahydrocannabinol (THC) via an Diels-Alder reaction was concluded. Additionally, some of the most potent compounds from preceding work have been encapsulated in micro and nanoparticulate carrier systems. The particles were capable to release their cannabinoid payloads over hours, days, weeks, and even months. The described microparticulate carrier systems should be able to generate site-specific and long-term stable drug levels.

Foundations of Nursing Practice Chris Brooker, Anne Waugh, 2013-01-08 This second edition of Foundations of Nursing Practice has been revised and updated specifically to meet the needs of nursing students in all fields of practice.
