The Lion and the Mouse

Awake from his nap, the lion laid his paws gently on the tiny creature, ready to pounce for his "game." "You're not" began the poor mouse. "Please let me go, and someday I will surely repay you!" The lion was amused to think that a mouse could ever help. He was generous and finally let the mouse go.

Some days later, while walking to prey in the forest, the lion was caught in a hunter's net. Unable to free himself, he called the forest with his angry roars. The mouse from the forest was quickly found by the lion struggling in his net.

Running to one of the great trees that towered high, the mouse climbed it with a jerk, and soon the lion was free. "You laughed when I said I would repay you," said the mouse. "Now you see that even a mouse can help a lion."

The Tortoise and the Hare

Once, there was a strong, young hare who bragged about how fast he could run. He had just had a victory (he thinking he was the best runner in the world). He was asked by one little to run to the green field. And every time he ran, he bragged about himself to the other animals. He especially bragged to the tortoise because he felt so superior to such a slow creature. Tired of hearing him boast, the slow tortoise challenged the hare to a race. The hare agreed at once, thinking that he would beat the tortoise easily. All of the animals gathered already at the finish line to watch the race.

As soon as the race started, the hare dashed ahead. He ran down the road fast, without stopping, confidently decided to give the tortoise a rest. "How do you expect to win this race when you are walking along at such a slow pace?" he said proudly to the tortoise.

The hare stretched himself and loudly said to a fox and jack rabbit, thinking, "There is nothing of race to make, talk, and arguments. That tortoise will never beat me!" The tortoise walked slowly past the hare. He walked and walked. He persevered until he got to the end of the race.

The animals cheered as they saw the tortoise reach the finish line. "Tortoise, you are the winner!" they cheered. The hare found the cheering and noise with a start. He started to turn as a rabbit toward the finishing line, but it was far too late. The tortoise had already crossed the line. "It's not fair," complained the hare. "I was winning. We have to do the race again." But this time, no one listened to the hare. After that, the hare always bragged himself. "Don't dare off about your speedy pace. Slow and steady won the race!"

Keep trying, even when things seem hard.

Review Neil Barron, R. Reginald, 2009-11-01 Science Fiction Fantasy Book Review was founded in 1979 to provide comprehensive coverage of all the major and minor books being released in the genre at that time. This was the golden era of SF publishing with a thousand titles old and new hitting the stands and the bookshelves each and every year. From the older classics to the newest speculative fiction this was the period when the best and the brightest shined forth their talents. SF FBR included reviews by writers in the field by amateur critics and by litterateurs and University professors. Over a thousand books were covered during the single year of publication many of them having been reviewed nowhere else before or since. The January 1980 issue includes a comprehensive index of all the works featured during the preceding year. This reprint will
