Fargo Grapples with the Great Depression historian David B Danbom shows how this exemplary American city struggled to survive problems it could not solve by itself People of all classes shunned and demonized those who accepted relief Unemployed men formed a club to barter goods and to influence work programs City leaders forced to accept federal help fought for local control Danbom also traces the effects of larger cultural changes not rooted in the Depression but sometimes exacerbated by it struggles between employers and workers the growing independence of women and conflict between parents and children BOOK JACKET School Desegregation in the Los Angeles Unified School District David Lopez-Lee, 1976 In the Supreme Court of the State of New York, 1918 Annual Report of the New Jersey State Board of Education, with the Report of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction New Jersey. Reed, 2014-05-29 Over the past fifty years the federal government's efforts to reform American public education have transformed U S schools from locally run enterprises into complex systems jointly constructed by federal state and local actors The construction of this federal schoolhouse an educational system with common national expectations and practices has fundamentally altered both education politics and the norms governing educational policy at the local level Building the Federal Schoolhouse examines these issues through an in depth fifty year examination of federal educational policies in the community of Alexandria Virginia a wealthy yet socially diverse suburb of Washington D C The epochal social transformations that swept through America in the past half century hit Alexandria with particular force transforming its Jim Crow school system into a new immigrant gateway district within two generations Along the way the school system has struggled to provide quality education for special needs students and has sought to overcome the legacies of tracking and segregated learning while simultaneously retaining upper middle class students Most recently it has grappled with state and federally imposed accountability measures that seek to boost educational outcomes All of these policy initiatives have contended with the existing political regime within Alexandria at times forcing it to a breaking point and at other times reconstructing it All the while the local expectations and governing realities of administrators parents politicians and voters have sharply constrained federal initiatives limiting their scope when in conflict with local commitments and amplifying them when they align Through an extensive use of local archives contemporary accounts school data and interviews Douglas S Reed not only paints an intimate portrait of the conflicts that the federal schoolhouse s creation has wrought in Alexandria but also documents the successes of the federal commitment to greater educational opportunity In so doing he highlights the complexity of the American education state and the centrality of local regimes and local historical context to federal educational reform efforts
