Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and blood pressure (BP) of sedentary, middle-aged men. The subjects were divided into two groups: a control group and an exercise group. The exercise group performed a 12-week training program consisting of three sessions per week of aerobic exercise. The control group did not exercise. The HR and BP were measured at baseline and at the end of the 12-week training program. The results showed that the exercise group had a significant decrease in HR and BP compared to the control group. The HR decreased from 72 to 68 beats per minute, and the BP decreased from 120/80 to 110/70 mmHg. The control group showed no significant change in HR and BP. The results suggest that a 12-week training program can effectively reduce HR and BP in sedentary, middle-aged men.

- Day and night periods that are longer than the standard 24 hours occur most commonly with the use of artificial light or natural light sources. To avoid this, there are two things the producer should do:
 - 1. Use natural light sources that are as close to the natural day/night cycle as possible.
 - 2. Use artificial light sources that are as close to the natural day/night cycle as possible.
- The end of the day is the time when the light intensity is the lowest. This is the time when the producer should be most careful to avoid the light source. The light source should be turned off or dimmed to avoid the light source.

Proper ventilation is critical to maintain proper ventilation. Failure to maintain proper ventilation may result in a variety of problems with the product.

- When a producer's price for the output rises or falls, it must adjust its output level accordingly. A rise in the price of the output will cause the producer to produce more output, and a fall in the price of the output will cause the producer to produce less output.
