- Day and night periods that are longer than the standard 24 hours occur most commonly with the use of artificial light or other light sources. To avoid this, there are two things the producer should do:
  - Turn off the lights at the end of the work day.
  - Use red light for night shifts, as the wavelength of this light is less likely to disrupt the circadian rhythm.
- The end of night shifts is the most difficult time to change the production rate. The production rate is the lowest at the end of night shifts, but it is also the time when the production rate is most likely to be disrupted by the end of the shift. To avoid this, the producer should:
  - Turn off the lights at the end of the shift.
  - Use red light for night shifts, as the wavelength of this light is less likely to disrupt the circadian rhythm.
