

Rose-Coloured Glasses: The Discourse on Information Technology in the Romanow Report

Ellen Balka, Kjetil Rodje, & Corlann Gee Bush
Simon Fraser University

Abstract: Here discourse about information technology in Canada's health sector is examined. After an overview of the emergence of the Canadian Health Information Infrastructure, discourse within the Romanow Report is discussed in relation to three key themes: standardization, empowerment, and time/space compression. While an instrumental view of technology in the health care sector is the predominant discourse articulated in the report, we argue that, by emphasizing technology assessment, the Romanow Report makes room for a more nuanced analysis of technology implementations than is common to government reports. We conclude by suggesting how investigations of information and communication technology in the health sector, such as this, may offer opportunities to raise critical questions about technology and health policy from a communications perspective.

Keywords: Information technology/health sector; Canadian health information infrastructure; Romanow Report; Canadian Health Infoway

Résumé : Dans cet article, nous effectuons une analyse de discours sur les technologies de l'information dans le secteur de la santé au Canada. Suivant un survol de l'infrastructure de la technologie de l'information sur la santé du Canada, nous passons en revue le discours du rapport Romanow relatif à trois thèmes clés : la standardisation, l'autonomisation et la compression espace-temps. Bien qu'une perspective instrumentale sur la technologie dans le système de soins soit le discours prédominant articulé dans ce rapport, nous soutenons que le rapport Romanow, en mettant l'accent sur la prospective, effectue une analyse plus nuancée des mises en oeuvre technologiques que celles qu'on lit ordinairement dans des rapports gouvernementaux. Nous concluons cet article en proposant que des études comme celle-ci, qui portent sur la technologie de l'information et de la communication dans le secteur de la santé, ont le potentiel, tout en privilégiant une perspective communicationnelle, de soulever des questions critiques sur les politiques en matière de technologie et de santé.

Constitutional Rights and Constitutional Design Paul Yowell, 2018-04-26 The decisions courts make in constitutional rights cases pervade our political life and touch on our most basic interests and values The spread of judicial review of legislation around the world means that courts are increasingly called on to settle matters of moral and political controversy including assisted suicide data privacy anti terrorism measures marriage and abortion But doubts regarding the institutional capacities of courts for deciding such questions are growing Judges now regularly review social science research to assess whether a law will effectively achieve its aim and at what cost to other interests They cite studies and statistical information from psychology sociology medicine and other disciplines in which they are rarely trained This empirical reasoning proceeds alongside open ended moral reasoning with judges employing terms such as equality liberty and autonomy then determining what these require in concrete circumstances This book shows that courts were not designed for this kind of moral and empirical reasoning It argues that in comparison to legislatures the institutional capacities of courts are deficient Legislatures are better equipped than courts for deliberating and decision making in regard to the kinds of factual and moral issues that arise in constitutional rights cases The book concludes by considering the implications of comparative institutional capacity for constitutional design Is a system of judicial review of legislation something that constitutional framers should choose to adopt If so in what form For countries with systems of judicial review practical proposals are made to remedy deficiencies in the institutional capacities of courts
