Shows that the village council had no power for itself in the management of the affairs of the village, as the great Council makes important decisions, including a heavy village tax. Shows that the village council is not a body of the village, but a body of the great Council, and that the village council is not a body of the village, but a body of the great Council.

Match the division given with their category. Two categories are voluntary. Distinguish the place of division based on whether it is voluntary or involuntary.

The variables x , y and z and the matrix (M) will therefore represent $M = M(x, y, z)$ in the whole domain.
