Guardians of the Brazilian Amazon Rainforest: Environmental Organizations and Development Luiz C. Barbosa, 2015-05-08 The Amazon region is the focus of intense conflict between conservationists concerned with deforestation and advocates of agro industrial development This book focuses on the contributions of environmental organizations to the preservation of Brazilian Amazonia It reveals how environmental organizations such as Greenpeace Friends of the Earth WWF and others have fought fiercely to stop deforestation in the region It documents how the history of frontier expansion and environmental struggle in the region is linked to Brazil s position in an evolving capitalist world economy It is shown how Brazil s effort to become a developed country has led successive Brazilian governments to devise development projects for Amazonia The author analyses how globalization has led to the expansion of international commodity chains in the region particularly for mineral ores soybeans and beef He shows how environmental organizations have politicized these commodity chains as weapons of conservation through boycotting certain products while other pro development groups within Brazil claim that such organizations threaten Brazil s sovereignty over its own resources

Software Product Line Abdelrahman Elfaki, 2012-04-04 The Software Product Line SPL is an emerging methodology for developing software products Currently there are two hot issues in the SPL modelling and the analysis of the SPL Variability modelling techniques have been developed to assist engineers in dealing with the complications of variability management The principal goal of modelling variability techniques is to configure a successful software product by managing variability in domain engineering In other words a good method for modelling variability is a prerequisite for a successful SPL On the other hand analysis of the SPL aids the extraction of useful information from the SPL and provides a control and planning strategy mechanism for engineers or experts In addition the analysis of the SPL provides a clear view for users Moreover it ensures the accuracy of the SPL This book presents new techniques for modelling and new methods for SPL analysis

Refining Prevention: Genetic and Epigenetic Contributions Steven Beach, Jessica McDermott Sales, 2016-04-11

Currently most prevention efforts are famed as universal interventions. However, despite the demonstrated efficacy of many prevention programs, variability in response is the rule, with some participants responding very little and others accounting for the bulk of the positive impact of the program. Better understanding the processes associated with better and worse response to prevention is a critical first step in refining and adapting existing programs or alternatively designing new prevention programs with enhanced outcomes. Because vulnerabilities to substance use, emotional problems, risky sexual behavior, and other behavioral problems are influenced by a combination of environmental, genetic, and epigenetic factors mediated in part through psychological processes (Kreek et al 2005; Rutter et al 2006), the study of genetic and epigenetic vulnerability and susceptibility factors provides an important starting point for efforts to address this critical need. A growing body of research on differential genetic susceptibility indicates that efforts to enhance prevention impact may benefit from consideration of the contribution of individual genetic differences to treatment response (Brody et al 2013). In addition, the recent expansion of genetic research to include a focus on epigenetic change provides considerable promise for the development of indicated prevention and individually tailored prevention efforts. However, before this promise can be realized, a number of theoretical and practical challenges remain. Thus, through this special section, we propose to provide a foundation for a new era of prevention research in which the principles of prevention science are combined with genomic science. In the current special section, we will bring together authors to deal with genetic and epigenetically driven processes relevant to depression, substance abuse, and sexual risk taking. Together, they will comment on and provide data relevant to assessment research and statistical methods, development of biomarkers, and implementation strategies with disadvantaged and high-risk populations. The papers will help to inform the development of a new generation of prevention programs that go beyond universal programs and sensitively target key processes while providing greater precision regarding prediction of population-level impact.
