Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 10-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and heart rate reserve (HRR) of sedentary middle-aged men. The subjects were 15 men, 40 to 50 years old, who had been sedentary for at least 10 years. They were randomly assigned to a 10-week training program or a control group. The training program consisted of three sessions per week of aerobic exercise at 60% to 70% of the maximum HR. The control group did not exercise. The HR and HRR were measured at rest and during maximal exercise at the beginning and at the end of the 10-week period. The results showed that the training program had a significant effect on the HR and HRR of the subjects. The HR at rest decreased from 72 to 68 beats per minute, and the HRR increased from 28 to 32 beats per minute. The HR at maximal exercise decreased from 178 to 172 beats per minute, and the HRR at maximal exercise increased from 106 to 110 beats per minute. The results suggest that a 10-week training program can improve the cardiovascular fitness of sedentary middle-aged men.

- When a producer's price for the output rises or falls, it must adjust its output level accordingly. For example, suppose the price for the output rises. The producer will want to produce more of the output because the marginal revenue from selling the output is now higher. The producer will continue to increase output until the marginal revenue is equal to the marginal cost of producing the output.
