

Informative Speech Outline: Animal Cruelty

Animals are often forced to fight to the death, and if they are seriously wounded, left to die by their owners. B. Animal fighting rings have close ties to criminal organizations and attract illegal activities to the communities where they are located. ("4 tied", 2013) . Animal hoarding is another form of abuse. It often leads to hoarders not being able to take care of the animals they own. A. In more serious cases the homes of hoarders become public health hazards as animal waste builds up.

In the case Of a home in Huber Heights, Ohio, on Octahedron Drive, over 150 animals were kept in a residential house. The animals had to be taken to an emergency shelter because over half were considered ill and in need of medical treatment (Matthews, 2013). B. Hoarding can lead to mass amounts of animals being abused, much like the case of dog breeding farms ND exotic pet where thousands of animals are held in unlivable conditions and then sold for profit Cannibals Abused and Abandoned", 2013). TRANSITION: The abuse of animals is significant, and it is a widespread problem in US.

B. INHERENTLY: Animal cruelty is still prevalent across the nation in millions of homes. Many people who abuse animals turn out to be criminals later in life, therefore it is important for society as a whole to not only report, but to prevent animal abuse. Animal abuse often goes unreported and unnoticed. Many pets are abused by their owners, but no one ever sees it so the abuse continues. 1. In his article "Animal Abuse and Youth Violence," Frank R. Action lists multiple reasons why abusers harm animals.

These reasons include "To control an animal, to retaliate against an animal, to satisfy a prejudice against a species or breed, to express aggression through an animal, to enhance ones own aggressiveness, to shock people for amusement, to retaliate against other people, to displace hostility from a person to an animal, and to experience nonspecific sadism (Action, 2001). " 2. Children who live in homes where animal abuse is present are often abused themselves and unfortunately, sometimes carry on with the cycle of abuse later on in life. "More than 80 percent of family members being treated for child abuse also had abused animals.

In one-third of the cases, a child victim continued the cycle of violence by abusing a pet ("The animal abuse home violence connection", 2013). " 1. In a study done in 2005 by Christopher Henley and Suzanne E. Tallahatchie, it was discovered that "inmates who were younger when they first witnessed someone hurt or kill animals and those who witnessed a friend hurt or kill animals were more keel to commit animal cruelty more frequently (Duckiest,Henley, and Tallahatchie, 2011). " 1. Violent criminals often have a history of abusing animals.

In fact, "The FBI sees animal cruelty as a predictor of violence against people and co
