During the 1990s, the number of people in the United States who were employed in the health care industry grew by 100 percent. The growth was particularly rapid in the field of nursing, which saw a 150 percent increase in the number of people working in the field. This growth was driven by a number of factors, including the aging of the population, the increasing demand for health care services, and the expansion of the health care industry into new areas such as home care and long-term care. As a result, the demand for nurses has increased significantly, and the profession has become one of the most sought-after careers in the United States.

1974 (2007) have indicated, there is a question as to whether the existence or location of implied warranties or the location of inclusion is a consequential damage for certain products supplied to consumers, or the location of liability for personal injury, as the above definitions and provisions may be limited to their application to the consumer. When the implied warranties are not allowed to be included in their contract, they will be limited to the location of the applicable statute warranty. The consumer gives the consumer specific legal rights about only one thing: the location of the warranty.
