School of Foreign Languages, Northwest Normal University, China.

Abstract

Reading is an important way for senior high school students to get information. Reading ability is one of the necessary abilities for students in English learning. At present, PWP reading teaching mode (Pre-reading, While-reading, Post-reading), which is widely used in English teaching, is to determine the objectives and tasks according to the teaching content of reading class, with pre-reading activities, while reading activities and post-reading activities are used to teach reading. This paper makes an effective analysis of the PWP three-stage English reading teaching model, uses the PWP teaching model to design reading class teaching, designs certain teaching activities before reading, during reading and after reading, and provides suggestions on how to design English PWP reading teaching in senior high school efficiently. Furthermore, it discusses how to use PWP teaching mode to improve the effectiveness of English reading in senior high school.

Keywords

PWP teaching mode, English reading, Teaching design

1. Introduction

According to the requirements of the new curriculum standard of the Ministry of Education, the English course of senior high school should emphasize the further development of students' comprehensive language use, and focus on improving students' ability to obtain information, pay special attention to improving students' ability to think and express in English. The new teaching concept advocates that highschool English teaching should emphasize the student-centered and activity-based teaching mode. However, at present, there is a certain gap between English reading teaching in senior highschools and the requirements of the new curriculum standards, and there is a lack of training students' comprehensive language use ability. First of all, teachers put too much emphasis on the teaching mode of words, sentence patterns and grammar in English reading teaching, taking language knowledge learning as the main line of

Human Capital Development and Indigenous Peoples Nicholas Biddle, 2018-10-09 In all countries for which data is available Indigenous peoples have lower rates of formal educational participation and attainment than their non Indigenous counterparts There are many structural reasons for this but it may in part be related to the perceived relationship between the costs and benefits of education Human Capital Development and Indigenous Peoples systematically applies a human capital approach to educational policy to help understand the education and broader development outcomes of indigenous peoples The basic Human Capital Model states that individuals families and communities will invest in education until the benefits of doing so no longer outweigh the costs This trade off is often considered in monetary terms Here the author broadens cost benefit definitions to include health and wellbeing improvements alongside social costs driven by discrimination and unfair treatment in schools With coverage of the Americas Asia Australia and New Zealand the book critiques existing approaches and provides an outlet for the self described experiences of a diverse set of indigenous peoples on the breadth of educational costs and benefits Combining new quantitative analysis cross national perspectives and an explicit policy focus this book provides policy actors with a detailed understanding of the education decision and equips them with the knowledge to enhance benefits while minimising costs This book will appeal to policy engaged researchers in the fields of economics demography sociology political science development studies and anthropology as well as policy makers or practitioners who are interested in incorporating the most recent evidence into their practice or frameworks Popular Industrial Art Education, the Answer to a Question Walter Smith, 2024-04-06 Reprint of the original first published in 1882

Plantation Pedagogy Bayley J. Marquez, 2024-02-06 Throughout the nineteenth and twentieth centuries teachers administrators and policymakers fashioned a system of industrial education that attempted to transform Black and Indigenous peoples and land This form of teaching what Bayley J Marquez names plantation pedagogy was built on the claim that slavery and land dispossession are fundamentally educational Plantation pedagogy and the formal institutions that encompassed it were thus integrally tied to enslavement settlement and their inherent violence toward land and people Marquez investigates how proponents developed industrial education domestically and then spread the model abroad as part of US imperialism A deeply thoughtful and arresting work Plantation Pedagogy sits where Black and Native studies meet in order to understand our interconnected histories and theorize our collective futures Journal of a Dissenter Chris Wright, 2025-01-20 This is a lengthy intellectual journal by a political radical that ranges over a variety of subjects such as Marxism capitalism history many schools of modern philosophy psychology economics and contemporary American politics It also includes quite a few personal passages but I've kept those only because they express common experiences and youthful psychological tendencies Its most useful content for students might be its many summaries of good historical and scientific scholarship especially in the journal's second half Ultimately the document is a fairly comprehensive expression of a particular society as refracted through an inquisitive and critical mind from the ages of 15 to 44 International Educational and Cultural Exchange United States Advisory Commission on International Educational and Cultural Affairs, 1970 Justice of the Peace and Local Government Review, 1878 Injustice, Violence, and Peace H.P.P.
