The PA was established in 1994 and has since been the primary governing body for the Palestinian people. The PA has been responsible for the day-to-day administration of the West Bank and Gaza Strip, including the collection of taxes, the provision of public services, and the maintenance of law and order. The PA has also been responsible for the implementation of the Oslo Accords, which provided for the establishment of the PA and the withdrawal of Israeli forces from the West Bank and Gaza Strip. The PA has been a key player in the Israeli-Palestinian conflict, and its actions have been closely monitored by the international community. The PA has been accused of human rights abuses, including the use of force against civilians and the suppression of dissent. The PA has also been accused of corruption and mismanagement. Despite these criticisms, the PA remains the primary governing body for the Palestinian people, and its actions continue to have a significant impact on the Israeli-Palestinian conflict.
